COTTON PLANTS break through the water soaked soil on the George Proffer farm, route two, Matthews. Heavy rains have caused an estimated million-dollar loss in the Bootheel's cotton crop. Early May rains almost put an end to cotton planting in New Madrid county but where ground drained sufficiently farmers put in a late crop. This land was planted two days before a five-inch rain fell.

NOT ALL FARM PROSPECTS in New Madrid county are bleak. Corn stands waist high in the foreground and the wheat in the background has nearly matured on the Dub Riley farm at New Madrid's northwest city limits. Wheat and corn are in good condition throughout the county except at low points on the Mississippi river, where backwater spread over several thousand acres.

Fighting Erupts At Israeli Border

Armed Clash Kills 3

JERUSALEM (AP) — An armed clash erupted on Israel's border with Syria today, bringing the first fatalities since the Middle East crisis broke out. Israel's army spokesman said two Israelis and a Syrian were killed.

The fighting came a few hours after the appointment of Gen. Moshe Dayan, a vigorous fighting man and architect of Israel's triumph over Egypt in the Suez war of 1956, as defense minister. Israel looked to Dayan to prosecute a vigorous policy.

The skirmishing was in the village of Kfar Hanassi, populated by settlers from the United States. It is less than a mile from Syrai's border.

An Israeli army spokesman said a patrol encountered four armed Syrians as they were returning to Syria. Found near the Syrian's body were a submachine gun, two antipersonnel mines and ammunition.

It was the second day of firing on Israel's border with its Arab neighbors. Jordan said it opened fire Thursday on an Israeli helicopter that flew over its half of divided Jerusalem. Israel said a shell burst hit a house but no casualties were reported.

As the border incidents added to war jitters, French President Charles de Gaulle spoke out on the Middle East crisis, warning that any nation opening fire will have "neither the approval nor support" of France. Arab states have considered France a friend in the crisis although it has sold arms to Israel in the past.

"The worst thing which could happen would be the opening of hostilities," De Gaulle said in a Paris statement.

De Gaulle again called for the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France to try to solve the crisis—a call received coolly by the Russians although arousing interest in Washington and London.

Egypt showed no sign of backing down in the confrontation with Israel, which began early this month after its ally Syria charged the Israelis threatened an invasion.

Egypt threatened to close the Suez Canal to any nation that tries to break the blockade President Gamal Abdel Nasser has proclaimed in the Gulf of Aqaba.

At the north end of the gulf lies Elath, the Israeli port that imports most of the nation's oil. Israel has warned it will not wait indefinitely for the Western powers to work out a plan to nullify the blockade.

Appoint Hayti Man Head Start Director

Temporary Post Given To Cooper

PORTAGEVILLE - The Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation board of directors last night appointed Mike Cooper of Hayti as temporary director of the year-around Head Start program.

The appointment was made unanimously by the 24-member board. Cooper replaces Lloyd Phillips of Hayti, who was dismissed by the board.

The regional director of the Office of Economic Opportunity at Kansas City, Don Thomason, has refused to let DAEOC handle the summer program of Head Start and is looking for another non-profit corporation in the Bootheel to administer it.

Cooper will be the director of the current Head Start program, which has been in operation since last year.

The board also voted unanimously to authorize the board president, Robert M. Edwards, to call the regional office and request that the Southeast Missouri Development Corporation be permitted to administer the summer Head Start program.

Edwards said today that he had been unable to contact the regional office this morning to submit the proposal.

Pat Lea of Sikeston, president of SMDC, said today that he had not been contacted by officials about the proposal.

After the board voted to uphold its decision to dismiss Phillips and Bill Graves, both assistant directors of DAEOC Thomason ruled that DAEOC could not administer the summer Head Start program in Scott, Mississippi, Stoddard, Dunklin, Pemiscot and New Madrid counties.

Edwards sent a telegram to Sargent Shriver, executive director of OEO at Washington, D.C., requesting an investigation of the practices of the regional office. Edwards said he has received no reply from Shriver.

Wife Steers Car into Husband's Auto

A Kennett woman was accused by the state patrol today of causing a two-car collision when she grabbed the steering wheel of a car in which she was a passenger steering the car into the path of an automobile driven by her husband. A woman riding in her husband's car was injured.

No charges were filed.

The crash occurred at 7:35 p.m. Thursday on highway P, four miles east of Senath.

The patrol gave this account: Mrs. Ondie Mitchell, Kennett, was a passenger in a 1958 Chevrolet driven by Bessie Lowe, 43, Kennett. She recognized a 1960 Chevrolet, driven by her husband,

40 Blocks of Streets Paved in Lilbourn

By Leo Schade

LILBOURN - A 40-block street paving program was completed Thursday - another asset in Lilbourn's community betterment program. Lewis Stone is mayor.

The program included a majority of city streets. City clerk Jimmy Dambach, says that all the streets, which had been petitioned now are completed.

Cost was almost $40,000, half of which came from the gasoline tax. The other half will come from property tax.

In charge of the six-day construction program was Leo Hindman, engineer for the Delta Asphalt Inc., Cape Girardeau. A two-inch asphalt coating was laid on the 20-feet wide streets.

Paved streets attracted many children with bicycles and toys but produced expressions of concern for their safety.

The city has added a fogging machine to kill insects at a cost of $670. It was placed in use last week. The machine will cover the city three times each week. The cost of chemicals is expected to reach $500 for the season.

Move to Organize Regional Planning Agency

Initial steps for the organization of a regional planning commission in the six-county Bootheel area were taken last night in a meeting at the Holiday Inn.

The commission will serve Scott, Mississippi, Stoddard, New Madrid, Pemiscot and Dunklin counties. Eleven of the 57 governmental units in these counties were represented last night.

John Rogers, coordinator for local and regional planning at the office of state and regional planning and community development in Jefferson City, explained the purpose of a commission.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes says he is ready to designate a commission for the six-county area, Rogers pointed out. Four other commissions have been designated by the governor, including one in the Poplar Bluff area.

Rogers noted that the Bootheel has met the requirement of having at least 51 per cent of the governmental units in the area request that such a commission be designated. The number of governmental units expected to make the request will soon reach 100 per cent and will make the Bootheel the second in the state to achieve full participation.

Benefits of the commission, listed by Rogers:

To strengthen local governments, provide orderly utility development, develop a sound tax base, make more economical use of funds for basic needs, build and stabilize future economy, develop commercial and industrial potential and provide cooperative planning to conserve and protect recreational and natural resources.

The six-county area is ideal for formation of a regional planning commission because the counties share similar problems, including drainage, industrial and educational needs.

The commission will be autonomous. Services of the state office are given only in an advisory capacity, Rogers said.

Some of the programs commonly employed by regional planning commissions include:

1. Water and sewerage systems. This includes acquisition of loans and grants from the Farmers Home Administration for installation and improvement of rural water supply and distribution systems and the expansion of sewage collection and treatment systems. The program also includes utilization of grants under the Housing and Urban Development Act for construction of basic water and sewer facilities, which have been developed consistent with a comprehensive plan for area-wide improvement, and use of water pollution control act grants to help finance construction of sewage treatment works and improvement and repairs for existing plants.
2. Housing programs. This includes urban renewal, open space land program - acquisition and improvement of lands suitable for parks, recreational areas, conservation, scenic or historical purposes - and urban beautification improvement.
3. Community facilities, including loans for public works planning.
4. Libraries.
5. Outdoor recreation.
6. Hospital and medical facilities construction.
7. Nursing homes.
8. Education, including courses designed to assist in the solution of community problems.
9. Vocational education, including grants under the Vocational Education Act and Manpower Development and Training Act.
10. Airports.
11. Arts and humanities.
12. Assistance to the aging.
13. Assistance to the poor.
14. Planning and public works.

By forming a commission, the area will increase its influence in acquiring state and federal aid, Rogers claimed. Instead of 57 governmental units applying for aid, the commission could apply for aid on an area-wide basis and avoid duplication of services.

Commissions are given top priority in applications for aid, he pointed out.

Thirty-three states participate in the commission plan.

Although money is scarce for follow-through programs of commissions, an ample supply of aid will be available within five years if the country is not involved in a major war, Rogers said.

The program requires faith, time and work, but the program will be successful where others have failed, he contended.

In other commissions communities that have had little interaction work harmoniously for the benefit of the region, Rogers said.

Pat Lea, chairman of the Sikeston advisory committee, was elected temporary chairman of the commission by acclamation.

Appointed to a temporary by-laws committee:

W. Raymert Miller, J.E. Childress and L. F. Wheeler, Scott county; P. J. Ponder, Bill Winchester, L. J. Schwab, Mississippi county; John Calvin and Hal Hunter, New Madrid county; V.L. Cruse, Buren Napper, Carl McFarland, Dunklin county; Leroy Bain, Lonzo Kearsey, Joe Taylor, Pemiscot county; Alvin Corbin, Willis Conner, Clyde Henson, Stoddard county.

It was decided to call the agency the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
SHOW-AND-TELL TIME

Senator Edward Vaughn Long (D-Mo.) is described by Roger Winship Stuart in a book title "Meet the Senators" as a "soft-spoken Missourian . . .with a broad background of experience."

A new experience for the senator is the now well-publicized allegation that he received $48,-000 for legal services from former Teamster boss James Hoffa's chief counsel during 1963-64, and that thereupon he conducted Senate subcommittee hearings on wiretapping and eavesdropping closely linked with Hoffa's futile attempts to stay out of prison.

Senator Long's advocacy of the rights of privacy and free speech has won him considerable fame since he entered the Senate in 1960. His "experience" has included banking, insurance, law practice and politics. There has been widespread sympathy for his inquiries into the practices of Federal agencies making criminal and tax investigations.

But the question of motive now posed is one which needs answering. With the ethics cases of Representative Adam Clayton Powell and Senator Thomas Dodd so much in the public eye, the revelations of the Edward Long case threaten to add dishonor to Congress.

Whatever the truth may be, the Senate had best find it and lay it before the citizens. Senator Long has in the past defended the public right to know with zeal. This time the right to privacy. As a public servant, his actions must be above suspicion.

Since suspicion has been raised, the Senate owes it to itself and the people to determine the truth and take appropraite action.

CONSIDER OUR WATER

It is the universal liquid of life and part of our very being. It is everywhere around us, in the air and earth. Without it we could not survive, nor could any plant, animal or other living thing.

It is a final necessity, for which man has devised no substitute.

Water can be so abundant as to invite waste and neglect. It can be so scarce as to set man in earnest contest for its vital uses.

It demands understanding and respect. It has the power under direction to turn the mighty turbines of Grand Coulee. Unmanaged, it can strike in the angry form and force of floods.

It can produce crops, trees and grass - or the ugliness of raw gullies cut into an unprotected countryside.

Water provides the drama of Old Faithful, the majesty of the Mississippi, and the grandeau of Niagara Falls. In its infinite variety it is a thirst-quenching drink for the children of Atlanta, a cooling accessory for the steel mills of Ohio, and vital irrigation for Arizona's sunny fields.

It appears as soaking rain on Olympia's forests, the fleecy hush of a Vermont snowfall, and the quick excitement of a Kentucky thunderstorm.

It is a miraculous gift of God, given to us for our refreshment and endless uses. But our neglect can waste it; our misuse can turn it into offensive sewers of pollution.

Water tests our sense of responsibility to God and man. It asks for care, requires our self-discipline, and responds to management.

This priceless water has been here before and by God's plan will be returned again and again for us to use according to our maturity, either with wisdom or with shameful neglect.

Consider our water. Consider it well.

GREENVILLE, S. C. AP - Gov. Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri told an audience of about 500 at the South Carolina Governor's dinner here Monday night that a third party movement is headed for "political oblivion."

He made no mention of Former Gov. George Wallace of Alabama as a third party candidate at the $24-a-plate affair to raise Democratic party funds.

The free world has acted as if it was suddenly stricken with apoplexy since an audacious President Gamal Abdel Nasser has closed the Gulf of Aqaba to Israeli shipping.

Nasser is a small, tin-horn dictator but he will grow to become the same type of threat that the late German Strongman Adolf Hitler was to the world if he isn't stepped on soon.

Nasser's bluff hasn't been called.

He has not right to prevent any ship from entering or leaving the Gulf of Aqaba. It is not an Egyptian lake.

But our statesmen have wavered and quavered. The United Nations has called for deliberation rather than action. As a result Nasser's bold move has gone unchallenged. He has acted. The rest of the world has waited. Only pious statements have come from the free world.

Granted the United States involvement in Vietnam is substantial and that it should not be expected to act alone in disciplining Egypt, this country should not have taken a timid position.

At the outset instead of statements emphasizing our limitations as a world power, the stress should have been placed on the positive aspects of what this country was prepared to do to challenge Nasser.

The United States should have announced immediately that it was prepared to join France and Great Britain at once in reopening the Gulf of Aqaba to shipping of all nations, including Israel.

Israel cannot survive without access to the sea.

This country, France and Britain are committed to keeping the Strait of Tiran open to all nations.

Only Missouri's senior senator, Stuart Symington, has put the problem in approximately the proper focus and he hasn't gone far enough.

He urges "joint action by the United States, France and Great Britain to prevent aggression in the Near East."

"Preventing aggression" is too general a term. Both Egypt and Israel support this idea but they differ in what they define as aggression.

The joint action needed is to reopen the Gulf of Aqaba by force if necessary. It should be undertaken at once.

Nasser has gotten by with murder in the past.

If he succeeds in strangling Israel's economy by cutting off its shipping, he'll be increasingly more difficult to stop in the future.

America - indeed the world - has a big stake in the newest trouble in the Middle East. It is not a local dispute between Arabs and Jews.

Now is the time to put Nasser in his place.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

Expense account living has tempted more Americans into bad habits than the devil.

The most overpraised food item in Manhattan is the bagel.

Those who grow misty-eyed while talking about how good it is are generally speaking from memory. They probably haven't eaten one in a year.

One of the curses of modern prosperity is that a rich man now has a hard time finding anyone to break in his new shoes for him. In the old days a person of wealth usually had a poor relative wear his new shoes until the stiffness had been taken out of them.

Teen-agers are running out of new slang and turning to the old. For example, they now often use the term "boob" when they want to insult each other. That word, usually applied to a country yokel, was hot stuff in 1900.

We lose our values earlier in life now. A child begins to lose his when he no longer gets a thrill out of putting a penny in a machine and getting back a ball of gum.

Women who are overfond of cats usually have been disappointed in love earlier in life, or are so independent by nature that men shy away from them. That is what they admire in a cat — its seeming aloofness.

No matter how ill-gotten a man's gains may be, few who cluck their tongues about his character would refuse the chance to inherit his money.

The most overrated film currently being shown is "Blow-Up." It builds you up to a climax, then lets you down in Dullsville. But the intellectuals go for it, because they can't understand the symbolism. That is the biggest trouble with modern "intellectuals": They mistake artistic confusion for artistic genius.

If you think women act crazy at a department store bargain sale, go watch the New York Stock Exchange in action some time. Men are just as bad at their kind of bargain sales.

The guy who makes $15,000 a year today is usually in a more desperate financial strait than the one who makes only $6,000, because he is more likely to be living above his head.

So many nations dislike Uncle Sam because of his money that he feels like an orphan. But how many would rush to adopt him if he ever went broke?

Was It Sudden?

CONTENTMENT

A FARMER and his neighbor were reminiscing about mutual friends of their younger days, and the name of one with whom both had grown up was mentioned.

"He certainly has climbed high in the world since we three were schoolmates," said one.

"Yes," agreed the other, "but he is not happy. What he found on the upper levels was disappointing. The maxim by which he expressed his objectives in living was one familiar among us farmers -- 'The best apples are always at the top.' It is unreliable if contentment is desired."

There was once a fruit-grower who had a tree from which all the fruit had been picked except some that had grown on branches farthest from the ground.

"Those cherries look fine," the owner said to a friend, "but they are not worth the risk of picking them. One need only fall once to have a serious injury. And furthermore, the branches that can be safely reached supply all that we need. The birds can have the rest."

The friend expressed regret at the waste of the best of the fruit, whereupon the fruit-grower added, "The idea of the best being the hardest to get does not always hold true. Distance deceives in fruit as in people. The difficulty in reaching a situation rather than the actual value of what is obtained often distorts one's judgment. The cherries in the top of the tree are wormy!"

SPENDING AND TAXING

The reciprocal cause-and-effect relationship between federal spending and federal taxation is a puzzling subject. Nevertheless, anyone who wishes to understand fiscal developments must ponder it. To what extent do government spending needs affect taxation policies? And to what extent does the yield of the existing revenue system have an influence on spending?

This sounds like a hen-or-egg question that it might be amusing, but unprofitable, to study. Actually it has a direct bearing on an important current issue.

The country now has before it a proposal to raise income taxes by some $5 billion annually. What would be the future fiscal effects of enacting this increase?

A hasty answer might be that the tax increase would result in future deficits $5 billion less than they otherwise would be. But this assumes that the tax increase would have no feedback effect on spending levels. It might be just as reasonable to conclude that it would leave future deficits unchanged and simply encourage a level of government spending about $5 billion higher than would otherwise have prevailed.

Fiscal history doesn't give an unequivocal answer as to which result should be expected. But certain clues suggest that, under conditions relevant to the current situation, spending tends to be determined by the yield of the revenue system rather than vice versa.

On its face, this may seem difficult to believe. In the forty fiscal years between 1929 and 1968, expenditures exceeded revenues in all but eight. It would appear hard to maintain that spending has in any way been determined by, or limited by, revenue collections. The persistence of deficits might create the impression that this country's fiscal managers see no necessity for preserving any particular relationship between spending and taxing totals.

But this would be a superficial conclusion. The federal budget has varied over an enormous range during the past four decades. The degree to which revenue and spending totals have stayed close together is more impressive than the prevailing excess of spending over receipts.

So evidently there IS a tendency for revenues and spending to be tied together, albeit with a string that has some slack on it. And a look at the record suggests that, at least in certain circumstances, it is revenues that determine the order of magnitude of spending.

Between 1939 and 1947, federal receipts increased from $5 billion to $40 billion. Expenditures increased from $9 billion to $39 billion. Both sides of the budget made a quantum jump in the period spanning World War II. The fact that the orders of magnitude are the same must be more than a coincidence.

The same kind of result emerges if we examine the changes overlapping the Korean War. Between 1950 and 1954, spending increased from $40 to $67 billion and receipts increased from $36 billion to $64 billion. The higher level of revenues was reflected, not in a reduced deficit, but in increased spending.

One gets the impression that, during each of these war periods, a new higher-yielding revenue system was established and the country got used to it. In each case some of the tax increase was eliminated, but an important part was retained, after the war was over. The new higher level of tax collections encouraged a higher level of expenditures.

The same principle, in reverse, is illustrated by what happened at the time of the 1964 tax cut. For a period of about 18 months, while the cut was being studied and just after it was enacted, federal cash expenditures moved along a level line. The usually inexorable upward trend in spending was interrupted. Here again it appears that spending decisions were governed by taxation considerations, rather than vice versa.

The lesson for the present seems obvious. Enactment of an increase in taxes is more likely to provide support for a higher level of government spending than to reduce the size of future deficits. And resistance to the tax increase is more likely to result in curtailment of spending, than in an enlarged deficit.

Opposition to the President's proposal for a tax increase this year is not, despite the high probability of a deficit in 1968, a sign of fiscal irresponsibility on the part of the person who takes that stance. The deficit may be no greater without the tax increase than with it. And the record justifies a fear that wartime -- enacted tax increases, even if they are labeled temporary, tend to support a high level of government spending after the war is over.

U.S. ASSET:
ZEAL FOR PROGRESS

This month, 107 years ago, one of the most romantic episodes in American history began -- the Pony Express. The relay system cut communication time between St. Joseph, Mo., and Sacramento, Calif., from the 30 or 40 days required by stagecoaches to 14 days.

The Pony Express was fated to last only about 18 months because of the completion of the intercontinental telegraph. Even so, there were customers who couldn't wait, who were willing to pay what it cost for faster mail service.

To Alan S. Boyd, secretary of the new Department of Transportation, the Pony Express was an example of forced technology, of men pushing horsepower to the limits of its efficiency. It also illustrates the driving impatience of the American people for progress.

He cites the clipper ship of the 1840s and '50s as another example. Steamboats were already becoming competitive with sail when the swift clippers enjoyed their brief heyday. But Americans were unwilling to wait for the steamboat to be perfected. They forced sailing technology to its outermost limits.

We're doing the same thing today, says Boyd. We're building the supersonic transport -- pushing jet aviation to its practical limits -- even though we know it will be superseded by ever faster transportation 15 ot 20 years from now.

The secretary considers this impatience of Americans an admirable trait - - "one of the great and permanent characteristics of our nation."

While his examples are taken from communications and transportation, history is replete with others. We had hardly begun to populate the original 13 states, for instance, when we doubled the nation's size with the Louisiana Purchase.

Americans don't like to wait. Sometimes this trait has gotten us into trouble. It perpetually annoys our friends overseas. But American history will have reached an ominous juncture when this impatience for progress can no longer be called "one of the great and permanent characteristics of our nation."

A bandleader asked his pianist to give piano lessons to his young son. At the first lesson, the pianist said to the boy, "Do you know the scale?"

"Yes, sir," the 9-year-old answered. "One hundred bucks a week for sidemen and double for the leader."

ATHLETE'S FOOT

"Were you ever troubled with athlete's foot?" one big man on campus asked his buddy. "Only once," was the reply, "a football player caught me out with his girl."

H.L. Hunt Says

A STRONGER VOICE

CONDIRP, the Congressional District Reform Plan to change the system of electing the President of the United States, would give the 39 smaller states a stronger voice.

Under this plan, presidential electors would be chosen in the same manner as members of Congress. That is, one elector would be named from each Congressional District and two electors in each state would be chosen at large, as U.S. Senators are chosen.

A resolution to submit a Constitutional Amendment placing the plan in effect has been introduced in the Senate by Senator Ernest Gruening of Alaska and in the House of Representatives by Rep. Basil L. Whitener of North Carolina.

Rep. Whitener, in addressing the House on his resolution, said: "It is becoming more apparent to the nation every day that a more even and equitable distribution of political power among the several states in the election of a President is an absolute necessity if the checks and balances inherent in the American system are to survive. The selection of electors by Congressional Districts throughout the country would eliminate the dominance and control of American political action by large population centers."

Senator Gruening, who represents the state with the smallest population to the Union, also called attention to the need for preserving the effectiveness of the voters of citizens of the smaller states. Only in this way can the states be kept as distinct entities. Such preservation is essential for the continuance of our Republic as conceived by the Founders of Freedom in the United States. HLH.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- When it comes to the use of government carpenters, the Johnson administration is completely bipartisan. It sends carpenters all the way to Texas for repairs on Luci Nugent's house, and it sent them to Gettysburg, Pa., to work on ex-president Eisenhower's house.

It's all part of the arrangement whereby the secret service is entrusted with protecting the president's family and ex-presidents of the United States.

Feisty Harry Truman has had no carpenter sent to Independence, Mo., because he feels safe with his Missouri neighbors and feels he doesn't need secret service men hanging around. He's entitled to it, but turned it down. Eisenhower, on the other hand, makes use of the secret service.

All this came up when Washington started buzzing over the report that a government carpenter and an electrician were flown all the way from Washington to Austin to add a nursery to the new $100,000 home of the president's daughter, Luci Nugent.

After checking the facts, this column can report that a carpenter and a electrician from the general services maintenance force were sent from Washington to Austin by commercial airliner to work on the Nugent home. For some unexplained reason, and unlike most of the public, they traveled first class.

It is not true, however, that they built a nursery for the president's expected grandchild. The electrician worked on the secret electronic system that the secret service has installed for the family's protection. The carpenter patched up after the electricial. They worked not only in the nursery but other rooms in the house.

We found that the general services administration has a carpenter and a painter already on the payroll in Austin. However, they are not cleared to work on secret projects.

Last month the general services administration also sent electricians to make improvements in the secret service detection system at ex-president Eisenhower's Gettysburg farm.

BUSINESS LEADERS AND JOB CORPS

With some of the biggest businessmen in the nation enthusiastically supporting the anti-poverty program, their official spokesman, "Nation's Business," organ or the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, has been knocking it.

This paradox may result from the fact that the U.S. Chamber of Commerce has now acquired a former GOP congressional ghost-writer, Miss Pat Goldman, who last year dished out a patchwork of old rumors and stale scandals for Republican congressmen regarding the antipoverty program.

At any rate, the criticism of nation's business is interesting for the fact that it represents the exact opposite view of most business leaders.

Its lead editorial for January attacked the job corps as a program "rammed through congress two and a half years ago with dreamy promises of rehabilitating 40,000 forsaken youths the first year, then 100,000 the second. The program has failed to meet even its first year goal." And it told in detail the story of Jim Gonzales, who never had "Pride in his work during his two year-long stints in the federal government's job corps. In both places he was paid for supposedly learning about auto mechanics. 'It was like some charity,' Jim Recalls."

Then he got a job in private industry and began to have pride.

Careful checking of the facts revealed that Gonzales, whose real first name is Jaime, had never been in the job corps at the time nation's business wrote the article. He did not serve "two year-long stints" in the job corps, and he applied for work in the job corps only in the winter of 1967, after the nation's business article was published.

Just how nation's business researchers could have dreamed up his long record is hard to imagine.

ROLL CALL OF BUSINESS

Meanwhile some of the big businessmen of the nation have gone on record publicly in support of the job corps. They include officials of IBM, Burroughs Adding Machine, RCA, Xerox, Litton Industries, Westinghouse, Montgomery Ward and International Tel & Tel.

Robert E. Brooker, president of Montgomery Ward, has recorded a series of radio spots similar to this one:

"We at Montgomery Ward have learned that the job corps is helping to prepare young people to be productive members of our expanding economy. . . and remember, when the job corps trains, the employer gains."

Testified Charles B. Thornton, chairman of Litton Industries: "In terms of the economic benefit and in terms of savings in the cost of relief, crime and institutional care, there is very much in it for us as businessmen."

Note -- Among the business leaders who serve on the anti-poverty advisrory council are G.L. Phillippe, chairman, General Electric; Donald Douglas, Jr., president, Douglas Aircraft; Edgar F. Kaiser, chairman, Kaiser Industries; Gardner Symonds, chairman, Gennessee Gas; Thomas J. Watson, Jr., chairman, IBM; Roger P. Sonnabend, president, Hotel Corporation of America.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

New National Labor Chief Seen
Meany Names Heir Apparent -- A Specialist In Hard-Hitting 'Target' Unionizing Drives.

Washington, D.C.: -- Easy lies the head that wears the crown inside labor today. It rests squarely, albeit sometimes jauntily, upon the robust 72-year-old George Meany, who scoffs at retiring -- but the word within the sanctum is that he appears to have named a very apparent heir.

The new crown prince will wince at the description for he is a rugged whirl-windish sailor who always is where the action is, or rather it is where he is since he is Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers International Union.

If insiders are right, this will send rumbles across country soon and shake up many a community. And the evidence of the succession -- though not very impending -- seems to be there, all right.

It came about quite simply. Walter Reuther abdicated virtually all his titles not too long ago, including his 11-year-old chairmanship of the AFL - CIO's Standing Committee on Organization. This was the sign that he had forever abandoned hopes for leadership of the 14 million-member movement -- the free world's largest.

The other day there came to the desk of Paul Hall a short letter from Meany naming the seafarer as Reuther's successor to this crucial post.

Why crucial?

It was created to be the second spot in labor's hierarchy -- and by none other than the movement's special counsel at the time, Arthur J. Goldberg. There was much maneuvering back in 1955 when the AFL and CIO chieftains were jousting for position while merging their two massive organizations.

There never was any doubt that Meany would be president. But Reuther, even then not his most ardent admirer, wanted guarantees that he would some day succeed the "plumber." Goldberg, always the peacemaker and molder of compromises, devised the Committee on Organization. This would be the power seat. From this position Reuther could launch drives, stay in the public spotlight, crisscross the nation and deliver mass appeals to the masses.

This was fine with Meany. To show his good faith he not only agreed to Reuther, the former head of the CIO, controlling the strategic Committee on Organization, but also turned over most of the key departments to former CIO aides of Reuther.

Furthermore, Meany called in brother Victor Reuther and offered to appoint him special assistant to the AFL-CIO president. This would have put a Reuther right inside the sanctum. Victor Reuther rejected this and went to work for his brother as head of the Auto Union's own state department.

Still Meany did not pass over any chance to move the Reuthers and their colleagues closer to the central organization. The AFL-CIO president then named an auto union leader, Jack Livingston, Director of Organization -- in a sense a subsidiary of the committee. When Livingston resigned, Meany replaced him with another auto union man, Bill Kirscher.

It positively was Meany's intention to resign sometime along 1963 or '65. But Reuther cut loose on him and Meany never quits under tongue lash or firebrands. So he stayed. And he loves it.

Now Paul Hall is in Reuther's old juggernaut. The sailor, who burns daylight and sometimes flies 10 to 15 thousand miles a week, plans to unionize the ununionized.

"Target Organization," he calls it.

"Remember when the CIO had operation Dixie?" he asked an inquiring friend the other day. "It could not succeed. It was too broad. It dissipated labor's strength.

"But, let us zoom in on a target and whittle down the size of the battlefield but not the size of our army or war chest."

Though he has played the auto union leader at the drop of a Reutherian dialectic, Hall praised him for developing concentration tactics -- especially in the Los Angeles area. There, says Hall, in one of the toughest areas in which labor can attempt to unionize, target concentration has succeeded.

Some years ago the region was selected by the national organizing committee for concentration. All unions in the Los Angeles and Orange Counties were set up in divisions. Then they created a "Combined Divisions" system. They unionized anybody who would join in any sort of plant or shop. Then the workers were sifted into their proper unions.

Last Feb. 20 the Combined Divisions representatives met in the Rodger Young auditorium. They heard that they had unionized 94,930 in all in the counties.

Now Hall will try to emulate this in other target areas. To use his own word, there will be many a rumble throughout the land.

Thus easy lies the head that wears the crown inside labor today. He has a stalwart by his side.

10 Inning Game To Birds

Jackson Gets Win In Relief

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals scored their ninth-inning runs Thursday night in a comedy of errors. But Bobby Tolan's 10th inning triple was no laughing matter—especially to the Atlanta Braves.

The little outfielder tripled off loser Clay Carrol, 2-6, to left center field to drive in Phil Gagliano as the Cardinals beat Atlanta, 5-4. But it took a two-base error, a wild pitch and two passed balls before Tolan got the chance to play the hero.

Pinchhitter John Romano reached second in the ninth on a throwing error by third baseman Clete Boyer. Knuckleballer Phil Niekro replaced Denny Lemaster on the mound. Dick Hughes, who ran for Romano, then took third on a wild pitch and scored on Lou Brock's fly ball.

Julian Javier walked and went to third as catcher Joe Torre had more trouble finding the ball than batter Curt Flood. When Flood did find it he singled to left and scored Javier to tie the game.

How could Flood hit the ball if Torre couldn't even catch it?

"That's a good question," Flood said. "The way Niekro was missing the plate with the knuckler I thought he would go to something else—and he did. I hit a slider for the single."

"If he'd been throwing strikes," Flood continued. "he'd have really been vicious. That ball was really moving. I didn't know where the ball was going. He didn't even know where it was going."

Tolan knew where his ball was going, but not how far.

"I knew the ball was going to get in there, but I didn't think it would go for extra bases," Tolan said. He kept running and reached third before Gagliano touched home for the winning run.

Tolan, a 21-year-old Los Angeles resident is happy about the progress he has made since he came up late last season and hit .172 in 43 games with the Cardinals. His batting average now is .343.

"This year I figure I've really come into my own in more ways," he said. "I feel a lot better. I'm even pulling the ball more."

Tolan said he put on some weight last winter while on duty with the Army reserves and although he shed some of the extra poundage he feels stronger.

He also picked up some batting tips over the winter.

"A friend of mine, Carl Kiel, who's a scout for Houston, told me I should tilt my bat instead of holding it straight up." Tolan said pitchers no longer were able to jam him with an inside pitch.

Al Jackson, 4-2, got the victory Thursday night with one perfect inning in relief.

Festival Of Champions Saturday

JONESBORO, ARK. - State records may tumble by the dozen when the Festival of Champions invitational meet is run off at Arkansas State University's Kays Stadium Saturday. The meet will bring together the best athletes in the state plus top-notch performers throughout the MidSouth.

With stern competition to push the tracksters, several state marks are in danger. During the season 10 state records were tied or broken in one of the best springs in the sport.

A class field of thoroughbreds make the 100-yard dash a primary target of the runners even though state record holder Leroy Thomas had to withdraw from the meet because of an injury.

Other 9.5 sprinters Robert Brown of Arkansas AM&N, Jackie Seale of Southern State and Mike Maxwell of Arkansas A&M along with Ezra Burnham of Philander Smith and Bill Caputo of Arkansas State, who has clocked a 9.4 wind aided time, boost the chances for a possible record.

Record holder Elbert Stinson in the 220 and 400 dashes will be in both events and the Arkansas AM&N star may be pushed to new lows with a 220 field including Burnham (21.4), Seale (21.4), Maxwell (21.6) and Caputo (21.9) and a quartermile list that includes teammate Harold Francis (47.2), AIC record holder Elgin Stokes of Southern State (48.1), Harding's Kent Smith (48.8) and Memphis State's Richard Holt (47.8).

Harding's distance runner Jim Crawford, the state record holder in the mile, two-mile and three-mile runs, will shoot for the 880-yard record in the Festival against such half milers as Earl Goldman of Arkansas AM&N (1:52.2), McArthur McGlaughlin of Arkansas AM&N (1:54.2), Richard Vernon of Memphis State (1:53.3) and Randy Erwin of Arkansas State (1:54.0). Crawford's best in the event is 1:52.5 in the AIC meet.

A star-studded field of distance men will push for new marks in the mile and two-mile with A-State's Bob Giersberg, State College's Ricky Richardson, Harding's Joe Boyle and Cliff Clark heading the Arkansas list.

Mississippi State star Don Hunt, the Southeast Conference mile and two-mile champion, will feature the field which hopes to break Crawford's state standards of 4:04.2 in the four lap event and 9:00.4 in the two mile.

Memphis State's Randy Carlton (53.4) tops a speedy field of 440 hurdlers including such state striders as David Johnston of State College (53.6), Jay Philbrick of Henderson (54.0), Kent Smith of Harding (53.5) the AIC champ, and Mike Turner of Quachita (54.9).

Arkansas AM&N, with pressure from Southern State, Memphis State and Philander Smith may be extended into record times in the 440-yard and mile relays. The Golden Lions quartets hold both state records of 40.2 and 3:06.1. The latter time is the second fastest in the nation this spring.

Host school Arkansas State is given the best chance for a Mid-South champion in any of four field events in which the Indians own a top time.

State high jump standard holder Jerald Spencer of ASU has a year's best of 6-8 1/4 in his speciality, only a Quarter of an inch under his state record. Spencer will also vie in the triple jump (45-4 3/4) along with state record holder and teammate Eddie Pruitt (45-6 3/4) and Danny Carroll (46-01/2w). Memphis State's Ted Davis will merit the favorite's roll in the latter event, however, with his season's best of 48-3.

Two other state record holders Jeff Lansdale and David Young will head up the field in the javelin and shot put, respectively. Lansdale who has a best of 247-1 in the spear throwing has a 218 this spring to head the entries while Young who has done nearly 56 feet has a spring's best of 53-6.

Two Arkansas AM&N jumpers are expected to fight it out for the long jump championship with Robert Brown owning a 24-4 and Jesse Sibert having a 24-0. John Cunningham of Quachita (23-5-1/2), Mike Hunnicutt of Southern State (23-4), Johnston of State College (23-7) and Davis of Memphis State (23-6) are other strong entries.

Hole-in-One Scored On 12th In Memphis Open

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)— Babe Hiskey trailed leader Dave Hill going into the second round of the $100,000 Memphis Open Golf Tournament today, but the new car he won for a hole-in-one soothed the pain.

Hill, from Jackson, Mich., shot a 5-under-par 65 in the opening round Thursday and used a powerful driving game to post an eagle 3, three birdies and 14 pars.

Chasing Hill as play resumed today were Bert Weaver at 66 and four others bunched at 67—Gary Player, Harold Henning, Dave Marr and Hiskey.

Next came Dave Stockton, Dave Ragan, Steve Spray and Randi Petri with 68s. Defending champion Bert Yancey shot a par-70, and former champ Jack Nicklaus soared to a 77.

Hiskey, 28, of Burley, Idaho, jumped to an early lead with a 7-iron hole-in-one on the 182-yard 12th. And he missed another hole-in-one by two inches on the 17th.

But the putter was his big stick and perhaps the deadliest club on the course. Hiskey was not accurate with his tee shots and he hit only 12 greens in regulation. But he tied for first on the greens—with eight one-putts and nine two-putts.

A 30-footer on the 500-yard 16th gave him an eagle-3, and he sank 25-foot putts for a birdie and a par.

Student Group Protests New Hiring Practice

KANSAS CITY (AP)— An official of the Missouri Federation of College Republican Clubs said Tuesday that more than 1,000 signatures have been obtained to petitions protesting the state's new practice in hiring of summer employees for the Missouri Highway Department.

John Sharp, executive vice-chairman of the federation and a student at the University of Missouri at Kansas City, said the signers include about 200 students and teachers at UMKC and Rockhurst College in Kansas City.

Republican legislative leaders have criticized Gov. Warren E. Hearnes for the new hiring practices in which highway jobs are being handled through Floyd Warmann, political patronage assistant to the governor.

An investigation into the situation by a Missouri House committee is tentatively set to begin June 5. The governor has said his office is not asking the politics of students seeking summer jobs.

Sharp said John Mueller, a student of the University of Missouri at Columbia and state chairman of the federation, plans to present the petitions to the governor Thursday.

Sharp said the petitions "oppose the actions of Gov. Hearnes in taking the hiring of summer students out of the hand of the Highway Department and making them payoffs for his political friends."

He said, "We ask that the governor put the hiring . . . back into the hands of the Highway Department and that hiring be on the basis of need rather than political connections."

Secret Service agents have been active in the lake area for some time, checking security arrangements for the visit. The President is expected to attend a typical Missouri catfish fry during his stay.

Governors from 13 Midwestern states, including Gov. George Romney of Michigan, a potential Republican candidate for president, are scheduled to attend the conference Aug. 27-31.

Hawaiian Theme For Party

The party was in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde L. Launius, 708 Pine.

A Hawaiian theme was used. The walls of one section of the recreation room were covered with straw shades and strings of flowers. A tropical scene painted by Mrs. Lynn Price of Marble Hill also decorated the wall. Lawn furniture and a garden umbrella covered with straw furnished the room. Other decorations were a basket of artificial flowers, drift wood, fish net, potted plants and a palm tree.

The serving bar was centered with a cut glass punch bowl and a matching tray. Orchids were arranged on the tray. Fresh pineapples appointed each side of the bowl. A crystal punch bowl and orchid tapers in silver holders centered another serving table.

Refreshments were served.

As the guests arrived, they were greeted with "Aloha" by Debbie Launius. They were presented leis and orchids.

Card tables covered in white were centered with red candles. Miniature diplomas were place cards and mortarboards were favors.

Jim Trimble and John Swinney playing their electric guitars and Rodger McDaniel, drummer, entertained.

ONE OF THE WORLD'S WONDERS

About 500 years before Christ, a Babylonian king married a beautiful princess from a foreign country. She yearned for her native land — it's hills, trees and flowers. To gratify her, the king built a mighty structure four hundred feet square and a hundred feet tall on the west bank of the river Euphrates. Here he planted rare flowers and shrubs, trees and unusual plants. Thus the Hanging Gardens of Babylon, one of the Seven Wonders of the World, came into existence.

Potted plants and dish gardens can brighten and beautify your home. We have a wonderful selection that can add a touch of pleasant charm to any room . . . or bring friendly cheer to a shut-in friend. Call GR 1-5777 we are as close as your telephone.

House Passes Bonus Bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. AP — The Missouri House of Representatives Tuesday celebrated Memorial Day by passing a "pie in the sky" bonus bill for veterans of World War II, the Korean War and the continuing Vietnam conflict.

No estimates of the cost have been made but it would run upward from $400 million, depending on how long the Vietnam fighting continues.

It would give veterans $15 for each month of service within the continental United States and $25 a month for service overseas with a maximum of $2,000 to any one veteran.

A tenth of the revenue from the state's biggest revenue producer, the sales tax, would be earmarked to pay the cost of the bonus.

Normally, bonus proposals have a maximum of around $500 for any veteran and the current bill started out that way this time. But a group of Democrats grabbed it from its Republican sponsor, Rep. Edna Eads of Bonne Terre. They tacked the higher maximum on it and increased the share of the sales tax to pay it.

Bonus proposals have regularly been defeated in the Missouri Legislature in the past 20 years.

This time the House Appropriations chairman, Rep. E. J. Cantrell, D-Overland, was the only one to speak against the plan.

"Who's fooling whom?" he asked.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

Victor Hugo, French literary giant in the Nineteenth Century, was not only a man of many thousands of words in his poems, plays, novels and essays, but he was a dedicated man of action based on faith. Strongly influenced by his mother, a devout Catholic, both in his writings and in political action, he dedicated his life to man's liberty. Because of that dedication, he was exiled for 19 years.

In France his name stood as a symbol of the Republic and he said, "When liberty returns, I shall return!"

Later he became intensely absorbed with the soul of man. He jotted down many notes, including the following which is helpful even today.

"You say the soul is nothing but the resultant of the bodily powers. Why, then, is my soul more luminous when my bodily powers begin to fail? Winter is on my head, but eternal spring is in my heart."

Red Chinese Fed Continuous Stream Of Mao Propaganda

EDITOR'S NOTE— This is a report from an observant Japanese woman recently on a tour in China— a country few U.S. reporters have been allowed to see in the past 18 years. She is Chie Nishio, 37, a photographer of social documentaries.

By CHIE NISHIO

PEKING (AP)— Wherever you go, Mao, Mao, Mao.

The Chinese don't seem to get tired of reading about Mao Tse-tung, hearing about him, seeing his face plastered across walls, shops, and buildings all over China.

When we crossed the border from Hong Kong to Shumchun, each member of our party received a copy of Mao's quotations. Then we went to another room of the station to watch a 20-minute song and dance performance by 15 musicians and dancers. The theme: Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

On the 2½-hour train ride to Canton, in the first class, or "soft seat" section we got tea and the conductresses began another performance. But first, an interpreter urged us to read from our little red Mao books.

The songs were of Mao's greatness, or taken from the book of quotations. On the blouses of our 20-year-old conductresses were pinned small red cameos of Mao.

After a while we got used to opening our books; we sort of liked it.

We'd sing songs when the conductresses asked us. We didn't mind because they were fun.

As the train rolled through the countryside, with its red soil, its poor— and sometimes prosperous— farms, its sparse trees and broad vistas, I thought how they built the Great Wall. How many people without machines; so many, many years to build, like the pyramids of Egypt; the suffering, the hard life.

In Canton, another show, this time by the army. They were waiting for us at the station, with a picture of Mao and posters proclaiming: "Down with Liu Shao-chi." Soldiers gripped Mao's little red book in their hands.

Before eating dinner we read from Mao's thoughts. I asked our interpreter about religion. She told me the Chinese have freedom of religion and freedom of being antireligion. Religion is superstition, she said; we have Chairman Mao, so there is no need to believe in it.

Our guides took us in Canton to see a leadership school Mao founded in 1924; it is a mecca for Red Guards.

At a militia training ground, there was live ammunition firing, live mortars exploded. Trainees marched with rapid strides, carrying Mao's quotations. Band music was interspersed with Mao's thoughts.

In Peking, Shanghai, Chengchow, along the Great Wall, in the communes, it was the same: An ever-present Mao watched us.

In a Fatshan enamelware factory, the 500 workers turn out busts of Mao, read Mao's thoughts in the morning, at lunch and in the afternoon.

Fatshan itself is plastered with Mao's pictures and quotations, written in white characters on red boards.

Shanghai, the noisiest of Chinese cities, reverberates to the name of Mao. Loudspeakers blare from 6 a.m. until late at night. I couldn't sleep because of the noise. In the parks, more loudspeakers.

At the ballet in Peking and Shanghai the stories were about revolution. The audience booed the villains— landlords— and cheered the heroes— People's Liberation Army men. At the curtain calls the cast and audience joined in singing a song about Mao.

From Peking we went to the Great Wall of China, by car. A diesel locomotive which passed us had on its front, like a giant apron, a picture of Mao.

We had a picnic lunch of fried chicken, fried sausage, cookies, beer and orange juice then climbed onto the ancient wall. There, inevitably, was a picture of Mao.

Special Service At Bell City

BELL CITY -- Special services were held Sunday at the General Baptist church for the dedication of the new church windows. The Rev. Ernest Elledge of Sikeston, a former pastor at the church, delivered the dedicatory sermon.

The tinted opalescence windows were given by the Spears family in memory of their parents, Edward and Carrie Stockdale Spears. Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Miller of Cape Girardeau were present for the service.

The May meeting of the Woman's Society of Christian Service was Friday at the Methodist church. Mrs. Charles Bollinger led the pledge service, and Mrs. Paul H. Barks, president, was in charge of the business meeting.

Two visitors, Mrs. Lloyd Jones and Mrs. Letta Jones, attended. Mrs. Wallace Stephens became a new member.

It was voted to have the vacation Bible school starting June 12 for seven days. Each session will start at 2 p.m.

Barley Fields Observed

PORTAGEVILLE -- Officials of the Malting Barley Improvement Association of Milwaukee, and Anheuser Busch, Inc., of St. Louis were in the Portageville area last week to observe the malting barley fields and research work at the Delta Center.

Dr. A. J. Lejeune, Executive Director; Dr. P. E. Pawlisch, Research Agronomist and Mr. W. D. Drummond of the Malting Barley Improvement Association and Dr. Paul Hoskins of Anheuser-Busch said that barley crop looked good to them and predicted favorable yields. The group also complimented the farmers, grain dealers and the Delta Center for their enthusiasm and results accomplished in trying to develope malting barley as a crop in the Missouri Bootheel.

Besides looking at the barley fields near Portageville the group carefully inspected the extensive research being conducted by Dr. Leo Duclos on malting barley.

Dr. Duclos is crossing, testing and selecting for improved varieties of barley that will be adapted to Southeast Missouri. Dr. Duclos is also conducting rotation studies with barley using the major crops being grown in the Bootheel. One of the advantages of growing barley as a winter grain crop is that it matures earlier than wheat and can be followed with soybeans without too much risk of getting a reduction in soybean yield due to late planting. In connection with this Dr. Duclos is conducting studies of early harvesting of barley by cutting and windrowing the barley at 50% moisture and cutting at different moisture levels until normal harvesting stage to see how early can harvest barley without loss of yield and quality. This also permits earlier planting of soybeans and allows harvesting of the barley before the ripened grain is damaged by "weathering". The malting barley people like a bright, plump barley.

Seventeen farmers are cooperating with Anheuser-Busch and the University of Missouri in growing approximately 850 acres of Carstens, a two-row variety for large scale malting tests. Twelve of eleven growers and approximately 500 acres is being grown in the Portageville area.

Dave McCrate of Portageville and Joe Scott, Extension Field Crops Specialist at the Delta Center, have been instrumental in getting farmers to try this new crop. There is an unlimited demand for high quality malting and premium prices will be offered to farmers for the barley.

Engineers Okay Food Control Improvements

VICKSBURG, Miss. -- The Mississippi River U. S. Corps of Engineers has issued a favorable report and recommendation for flood control and improvements in Pemiscot County and Mississippi County, Ark. at an estimated total cost of $4,638,000.

The improvements and enlargements recommended by the Corps of Engineers are located on Belle Fountain Ditch and tributaries in southern Pemiscot County at an estimated cost of $2,425,000.

The Missouri plan calls for improvement and enlargement of 6.2 miles of Belle Fountain Ditch, located directly south of Kennett just north of the Arkansas state line, from its junction with the Outlet Ditch east to the confluence of Ditch No. 9 and Main Ditch; 7 miles of Ditch No. 9 from its mouth north to lateral No. 2; 7 miles of Main Ditch from its mouth eastward to the confluence of the north-south branch of Main Ditch and New Franklin Ditch; approximately 10 miles of New Franklin Ditch upstream to Main Ditch No. 2; 17 miles of Main Ditch from its junction at New Franklin Ditch north to Ditch No. 2; the entire 8 miles of Ditch No. 2; 6 miles of Ditch No. 6 upstream to Hayti; and 5.2 miles of Ditch No. 1 from its mouth to Caruthersville.

The plan for Drainage District No. 17 in Arkansas provides: cleanout of 0.8 mile of Ditch No. 71; enlargement of 6 miles of Ditch No. 21A and 3.5 miles of Ditch No. 25 from its mouth to the west boundary of Blytheville Air Force Base; a 700-cfs pumping station near the junction of Ditch 71 and Ditch 21B to discharge into Big Lake Floodway; and enlargement of: the entire 16 miles of Ditch No. 27; 2 miles of Ditch No. 30 from its mouth to Ditch No. 32; 1 miles of Ditch No. 33 from its mouth to the Blytheville city limits; 1.5 miles of Ditch No. 36 from its mouth to Ditch No. 37; 0.5 mile of Ditch No. 37 from Ditch No. 36 to the Blytheville city limits; and cleanout of approximately 3.8 miles of Pemiscot Bayou from its confluence with Ditch No. 27 to Ditch No. 36.

The report is being referred for review to the office of the U. S. Chief of Engineers in Washington, D.C. Interested parties are urged to present written views on the report to the Chief of Engineers. Statements submitted, according to the Mississippi River Commission, should not repeat material previously presented at public hearings held by the District Engineer or contained in the reports of the commission and the engineer since this information is already available to the Washington office.

Written communications on this matter should be mailed to: Chief of Engineers, Department of the Army, Washington, D. C. 20315. All correspondence should reach that office by June 36, 1967.

More Catholics To Receive Communion

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Starting Aug. 15, a greater number of Roman Catholics will be allowed to take communion wine as well as bread in celebration of the Eucharist, the peak of Catholic worship.

This is part of a series of new regulations on the Eucharist drawn up by the Vatican Congregation of Rites to implement changes in liturgy suggested by the Vatican Ecumenical Council and approved by Pope Paul VI.

In past practice only the priest, who consecrates the host, partakes of wine as well as the bread. Catholic belief considers the Eucharist as the blood and flesh of Christ.

Also able to take both bread and wine will be a bride and bridegroom in their wedding Mass, and newly baptized adults along with the godfather, godmother, parents and spouse of the newly baptized and the lay instructors who have prepared the adult for baptism.

Two Department Store Branches Closed

ST. LOUIS (AP)— Two of the four Scruggs - Vandervoort-Barney department stores in the St. Louis area have been closed, the Larchfield Corp. announced Wednesday.

Larchfield acquired the 117-year-old downtown store and its three suburban branches in August, 1963.

J. Fred Caesar, executive president and general manager of the stores, said both the downtown store and the Clayton, Mo., branch would discontinue operations at once. The Crestwood and Northwest Plaza stores would operate normally, he said.

Poor profits was the reason for the closings, despite heavy sums pumped into the operation, Caesar said.

Larchfield spokesmen said the corporation will buy from Harrison Factors Corp. of New York two buildings which it has been leasing for the downtown store. The current lease will not expire until 1971. Caesar said Larchfield plans to convert the two buildings into offices.

The lease on the Clayton store has about 58 years to run and Caesar said Larchfield is exploring several possibilities for sale of the lease but nothing has developed.

Looking Back Over The Years

50 years ago
June 2, 1917

V. L. Harris, aged 46, ex-Recorder of Deeds and former Public Administrator of Scott County, died at his home in Benton yesterday.

Small pox seems to be gradually dying out here, no new cases being reported since Sunday. Those reported last week were in homes where the disease had been before. There are indications that the quarantine will be lifted in a short time.

A letter from Harry Blanton, who is at the Ft. Riley training camp says that he has gained five pounds, notwithstanding the hard work. Ernest Arterburn and Frank Van Horne are both well.

The Sanitary Barber Shop on New Madrid street has recently been re-modeled and re-decorated. The owners of the shop, James Mocabee and John Fisher, are both enterprising young men.

Morehouse -- Hailstones moved a path from a mile south of Salcedo to Vanduser running east and west for many miles Tuesday. Crops were generally a complete loss and nearly every building was more or less damaged.

The surface water coming from north of Sikeston through our streets should be a fresh incentive for renewed efforts for some plan to take care of this nuisance. It is the worst possible advertisement any city ever had to have to run through water hub deep. No man or set of men should stand in the way of his relief.

Milton Blanton came in from Atlanta, Ga., Thursday morning, where he has been a student at Georgia Tech for the past three terms.

Miss Exalee Woodward of Bosworth will take the vacancy among the school teachers made by Miss Annette Smith.

Mary Kathryn Steis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Steis, and a member of the 1937 graduating class from St. Francis Xavier school, received Monday a four-year scholarship to Ursuline Academy at Arcadia, Mo. She will enroll there on September 6.

Morehouse -- Mr. and Mrs. Huley Williams report a baby girl born to them on May 27th, and her name is Elizabeth Ann.

Hospital notes. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Heckert of Bertrand are parents of a son born Tuesday.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Couch of Sikeston a son on Tuesday.

Jimmy Harris as valedictorian was awarded a scholarship and medal and Ardeth Kirby as salutatorian was awarded a scholarship at Commencement exercises Monday night at the high school.

Oran -- Chas. Wagner and family have moved to the property vacated by the Tate family.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: When a man marries a woman who is young enough to be his daughter --- or his granddaughter --- why do people think it is so romantic and glamorous? Yet when a woman marries a man who is younger than she is, the eyebrows shoot up and her sanity is questioned. When I was 18 I married a man 38. That marriage lasted 14 years and ended in divorce. Now I am married to a man 16 years my junior and we get along beautifully. But the outside world will not let us alone. Some fairly intelligent people have asked me some unbelievably crass questions. Will you comment, please? --DECEMBER AND MAY

Dear December: More old gaffers marry young chicks than the other way around, so people have come to accept more readily the May-December combination than the December - May arrangement.

A woman who marries a man 16 years her junior should expect some comment but if she has a good marriage it should not bother her.

Dear Ann Landers: I am glad you printed the letter from the Information Operator who resented being called "an ignorant broad."

I have been employed by the telephone company for a long time and I would like to offer some additional pointers to the public.

(1) Mothers, please teach your children to use the telephone book instead of how to dial 411 or 113.

(2) Learn the name of your cleaner, beauty shop, grocery store and "that little hamburger place on the corner." How do you expect US to know it if you don't?.

(3) Please don't chew potato chips and nuts and hard candy in our ears.

(4) Please have a pencil handy when you call information for a number. Sometimes people say, "Hold on while I get a pencil." Then they must go to the store to buy one!

Thanks for helping us educate the public. --- AREA CODE 312

Dear A.C.: Here's your letter and I hope all you lazy mothers, potato - chip chewers and pencilless people will pay attention.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 18. The boy I used to be ape over treated me pretty rotten and finally I told him to flake off. He did -- for six weeks. Then he started to call me again. We've had three dates since the bust-up and now I am sure there is nothing left of that old feeling. In fact, I can barely stand him.

The trouble is my mother thinks he is the greatest and she keeps trying to sell me on him. He knows this so he keeps coming to the house under the pretense of visiting HER.

Last night he was here for two hours. I stayed on the phone, and read the newspaper the whole time. I know it was rude but he grates on my nerves.

How can I get my mother to put an end to this phoney friendship which is really a plot to get me re-interested? --- D.J.N.

Dear D.: Your mother has a right to entertain anyone she pleases. Give the guy a pleasant greeting, then go into another room. Since he is not your guest you are under no obligation to entertain him. After awahile he'll give up.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting -- And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 25 cents in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Prayer
From The Upper Room

The salvation of the righteous is of the Lord: he is their strength in the time of trouble. (Psalm 37:39)

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, we thank Thee that in times of need Thou art always near to comfort and guide us. May we seek the comfort of Thine everlasting love in times of sorrow and distress. In the name of Jesus we pray. Amen.

Shared Time Blocked Again

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- A joint House - Senate study committee has concluded the "shared time" issue needs further investigation.

"The majority of the people lacked complete understanding of the proposal and some misunderstood it altogether," the committee said in its final report.

"Because of this confusion and general lack of understanding of the ultimate problems involved the committee feels it can make no recommendation."

A bill to let handicapped children from private and parochial schools attend special classes in public schools is stuck in a Senate committee after passing the House.

The special study committee recommended state aid to kindergartens, as proposed in pending legislation, and annual increases in the school foundation program to keep Missouri equal with other states in state aid and teachers' salaries.

Even though state aid has been increased about $10 million a year, the committee said "Missouri is falling behind the other states."

It also recommended school district reorganization should be handled under a master plan developed for the state as a whole.

Youth Killed as Sports Car Overturns

FORSYTH (AP) -- A young man was killed in a sports car that overturned on a curve of a rural road near Forsyth Monday night.

Officers said Gary Eugene Lemberger, 22, of Springfield, Mo., was pinned under the car and killed.

A companion, Brad Gilliland, 15, of Forsyth, was thrown clear and escaped with bruises.

Girl Strangled To Death

LAKE OZARK, Mo. AP - Virginia Rowden, 11, was reported in poor condition at the Lake Ozark clinic today after being strangled in her bedroom about 3 a.m.

The Highway Patrol said she was asleep in the apartment next door to a cafe where her mother, Mrs. Wanda Aiken, was working.

The patrol said a man apprehended while hiding in a nearby car was taken to the Miller County jail at Tuscumbia. The patrol identified him as Carroll Edward Cole, 29, of St. Louis.

A Harvard classmate of Theodore Rooseveit asked TR to name him ambassador to France. Thereafter the man always boasted to his friends: "Only one little word kept me from becoming ambassador to France". He never revealed that the one little word was TR's "No."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE
BY Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE BUSTY BRUISER

When Mike went to work at a factory that manufactured female sex hormones, he had muscles that shimmered every time he flexed his arm. With big broad shoulders, he was a real he-man to look at. But, after working at the factory for a period of time, he suddenly noticed that his deep baritone voice was changing to a high soprano. What's more, he found himself taking on other female characteristics. The real payoff came, however, when his fellow employees began to call him Michele instead of Mike. Furious, he sued his employer for damages.

"I should have been warned that those hormones could make a man effeminate," he complained to a judge. "Instead of looking like a ro-busty male, I'm starting to look like a busty female."

"If what Mike says is true," answered his employer. "It was an accident. Consequently, while he may be able to collect a Workman's Compensation award, he can't sue me for damages."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold Mike's employer liable because Mike turned from a he-man into a she-man?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that since Mike's "injury" arose out of and in the course of his employment, and was a compensatable disease, Mike's claim was properly one for Workmen's Compensation and not for damages against his employer.

(Based upon a 1954 New Jersey Superior Court, App. Div. Decision)

Can Sculptor Remodel Love-sick "Dull Girl"?

A steady stream of timid young girls has been wending its way to the studio of Sculptor Alex Monroe — a fact that has Mary Worth, for one, very curious.

In the new story, starting Monday, Mary finds Alex does more than mold the likeness of his young models . . . he molds their lives, as well, in an enterprise called "Pygmalion, Inc."

Remember what legend tells us happened to the original sculptor, Pygmalion? Will history repeat itself with Alex when he starts remodeling Essie Boswell?

How to cut employment problems down to size.

When we look at America's employment challenges — the need to create more jobs and to train people for existing jobs — as one huge national problem, demanding a single, vast federally-imposed solution, the task ahead appears overwhelmingly large and complex.

But if we look at employment problems on a community by community and company by company basis — even on a person by person basis — then we cut the problem down to size, and come up with the great variety of answers needed to produce practical solutions.

That's what an industrialist in Freeland, Pennsylvania did. He was convinced that the town's unemployed coal miners could be trained for factory work. He built a plant in the area, set up a system for screening job applicants, and systematic on-the-job training. Result: former miners are now turning out quality products and earning good wages.

The National Association of Manufacturers' STEP (Solutions To Employment Problems) program has reported on this instance — and dozens of other local solutions to employment challenges — in detailed case studies which are available without charge. Continued from page 1

Premier Levi Eshkol Thursday night gave up the defense post to Dayan, the 52-year-old, one-eyed war hero and political ally of former Premier David Ben-Gurion.

The appointment was warmly welcomed in Israel, though opinion was divided whether it promised a challenge soon to the Egyptian forces threatening Israel's southern shipping route through the Gulf of Aqaba or the Arab legions massed on Israel's frontiers.

Some Israeli hawks expect their government to take a stronger military posture. Doves said Eshkol would have to approve any change in policy, and so far he and Foreign Minister Abba Eban have been following the advice of the United States and others to keep their forces leashed while a diplomatic solution to the crisis is sought.

However, Dayan's appointment was expected in Israel to make a strong impression on the Arabs, who remember his successful leadership in the 1956 Sinai war.

Ben-Gurion hailed Dayan's reentry into the military field as "a very important step."

"It will give the country a wise and courageous leadership," he said.

The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram, Nasser's usual mouthpiece, claimed that the armed forces now control Israel and predicted that Premier Levhi Eshkol's government would be overthrown soon unless it takes military action against the Egyptian blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba.

Al Ahram warned that Egypt may shut off the Suez Canal to any nation trying to break the blockade it has imposed on the gulf between the Red Sea and Israel's southern port, Elath.

In a move to forestall any attempt by U.S. and British warships to break the blockade, Al Ahram said Cairo would regard such attempts as aggression and exercise its right to bar the aggressor's ships from the Suez Canal under the 1888 Treaty of Constantinople.

The paper said Nasser's government was drawing up a plan to meet "attempts by the United States and Britain to pressure and provoke Egypt."

Al Ahram also charged that passage of the U.S. aircraft carrier Intrepid through the Suez Canal Thursday "represented an American show of force even though the captain told canal authorities the ship was bound for the Indian Ocean."

The Intrepid, with 78 jet fighters aboard, steamed southeast through the Red Sea Thursday night. The U.S. Defense Department said she was bound for Vietnam.

U.S. leaders in Washington were reported still hopeful a way could be found out of the Middle East crisis without a test of force against Nasser's blockade of Israeli shipping.

A sweeping review of the situation and plans for future developments were high on the agenda for a White House conference today between President Johnson and British Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

Kuwait's oil minister, Abdul Rahman Alatiqi, said the oil conference would also warn oil companies that shipment of petroleum to countries supporting Israel would mean immediate abrogation of their concessions. British and American interests predominate in Kuwait, one of the Middle East's biggest oil producers.

King Hassan II of Morocco sent a message to all Arab governments proposing a summit meeting on the crisis, Moroccan officials disclosed.

In Amman, Jordan, Al Ahram reported, King Hussein summoned the U.S. ambassador to relay a warning to President Johnson that any American support for Israeli aggression would have far-reaching consequences on Arab-American relations."

Hussein was also reported to have protested U.S diversion of the American freighter Green Island to Ethiopia when it was en route to Jordan with a cargo of arms.

Arab unity still was not complete, however.

Al Ahram also reported that Saudi Arabia stopped supplying ammunition to Jordan after Hussein signed a five-year defense pact with Egypt Tuesday. Delivery of about 100 tons of ammunition which already had arrived at the Saudi-Jordan border was halted, the paper said.

Syria continued to criticize Jordan and ignore the new Egyptian-Jordanian treaty despite efforts by Nasser to get the Damascus government to sign a similar pact with Hussein. Damascus Radio again denounced the king as "the traitor monarch" and Damascus papers claimed that trouble had broke out inside Jordan.

The crisis brought pledges of support for both sides from various parts of the world.

Forty young Jewish men and women, some wearing miniskirts and beatle haircuts, arrived in Tel Aviv as volunteers. They came from Vancouver, New York and London.

In Rawalpindi, Pakistan, two student and social organizations announced that 500 volunteers are ready to leave for Egypt.

From Sweden came reports of volunteers lining up to back Israel.

In the Sudanese capital, Khartoum, Premier Ahmed Mahgoub said his country would send troops and other aid to Arab forces in their "imminent war."

The Iraqi government said squadrons of Iraqi planes had left to take up "front line positions" and that Iraqi troops had left for unspecified fronts.

Officials in Tripoli announced that Libyan army units had been moved to the country's eastern frontier with Egypt to await orders from King Idris to join the other Arab armies.

L. B. LUBER, right, signs purchase order to buy equipment for new 350-seat restaurant from J. M. and William Littleton, Sikeston. William Littleton, left, represents the company.

You owe your family this...

American children are the most affluent, educated and fortunate of peoples. Our country has a lot to offer them...and they have the resources to take advantage of it all. Make sure they KNOW their country. let them see America FIRST!

If they haven't marvelled at towering skyscrapers... if they haven't known the peace of a crystal blue Arkansas lake or the power of the Atlantic from a sun-splashed Florida beach. . .they're missing something. Part of their history is scattered on the Civil War battlefields of Georgia; many things that have helped shape their ideals and attitudes can be found in the nation's capital; their heritage includes the rugged mountains and tumbleweed tossed plains of the Southwest.

See AMERICA FIRST!

Family vacations, by car, are a good way of making sure that your children aren't deprived of something rich and proud . . . something called patriotism.

COTTON PLANTS break through the water soaked soil on the George Proffer farm, route two, Matthews. Heavy rains have caused an estimated million-dollar loss in the Bootheel's cotton crop. Early May rains almost put an end to cotton planting in New Madrid county but where ground drained sufficiently farmers put in a late crop. This land was planted two days before a five-inch rain fell.

NOT ALL FARM PROSPECTS in New Madrid county are bleak. Corn stands waist high in the foreground and the wheat in the background has nearly matured on the Dub Riley farm at New Madrid's northwest city limits. Wheat and corn are in good condition throughout the county except at low points on the Mississippi river, where backwater spread over several thousand acres.

Fighting Erupts At Israeli Border

Armed Clash Kills 3

JERUSALEM (AP) — An armed clash erupted on Israel's border with Syria today, bringing the first fatalities since the Middle East crisis broke out. Israel's army spokesman said two Israelis and a Syrian were killed.

The fighting came a few hours after the appointment of Gen. Moshe Dayan, a vigorous fighting man and architect of Israel's triumph over Egypt in the Suez war of 1956, as defense minister. Israel looked to Dayan to prosecute a vigorous policy.

The skirmishing was in the village of Kfar Hanassi, populated by settlers from the United States. It is less than a mile from Syrai's border.

An Israeli army spokesman said a patrol encountered four armed Syrians as they were returning to Syria. Found near the Syrian's body were a submachine gun, two antipersonnel mines and ammunition.

It was the second day of firing on Israel's border with its Arab neighbors. Jordan said it opened fire Thursday on an Israeli helicopter that flew over its half of divided Jerusalem. Israel said a shell burst hit a house but no casualties were reported.

As the border incidents added to war jitters, French President Charles de Gaulle spoke out on the Middle East crisis, warning that any nation opening fire will have "neither the approval nor support" of France. Arab states have considered France a friend in the crisis although it has sold arms to Israel in the past.

"The worst thing which could happen would be the opening of hostilities," De Gaulle said in a Paris statement.

De Gaulle again called for the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France to try to solve the crisis—a call received coolly by the Russians although arousing interest in Washington and London.

Egypt showed no sign of backing down in the confrontation with Israel, which began early this month after its ally Syria charged the Israelis threatened an invasion.

Egypt threatened to close the Suez Canal to any nation that tries to break the blockade President Gamal Abdel Nasser has proclaimed in the Gulf of Aqaba.

At the north end of the gulf lies Elath, the Israeli port that imports most of the nation's oil. Israel has warned it will not wait indefinitely for the Western powers to work out a plan to nullify the blockade.

Temporary Post Given To Cooper

PORTAGEVILLE - The Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation board of directors last night appointed Mike Cooper of Hayti as temporary director of the year-around Head Start program.

The appointment was made unanimously by the 24-member board. Cooper replaces Lloyd Phillips of Hayti, who was dismissed by the board.

The regional director of the Office of Economic Opportunity at Kansas City, Don Thomason, has refused to let DAEOC handle the summer program of Head Start and is looking for another non-profit corporation in the Bootheel to administer it.

Cooper will be the director of the current Head Start program, which has been in operation since last year.

The board also voted unanimously to authorize the board president, Robert M. Edwards, to call the regional office and request that the Southeast Missouri Development Corporation be permitted to administer the summer Head Start program.

Edwards said today that he had been unable to contact the regional office this morning to submit the proposal.

Pat Lea of Sikeston, president of SMDC, said today that he had not been contacted by officials about the proposal.

After the board voted to uphold its decision to dismiss Phillips and Bill Graves, both assistant directors of DAEOC Thomason ruled that DAEOC could not administer the summer Head Start program in Scott, Mississippi, Stoddard, Dunklin, Pemiscot and New Madrid counties.

Edwards sent a telegram to Sargent Shriver, executive director of OEO at Washington, D.C., requesting an investigation of the practices of the regional office. Edwards said he has received no reply from Shriver.

Wife Steers Car into Husband's Auto

A Kennett woman was accused by the state patrol today of causing a two-car collision when she grabbed the steering wheel of a car in which she was a passenger steering the car into the path of an automobile driven by her husband. A woman riding in her husband's car was injured.

No charges were filed.

The crash occurred at 7:35 p.m. Thursday on highway P, four miles east of Senath.

The patrol gave this account: Mrs. Ondie Mitchell, Kennett, was a passenger in a 1958 Chevrolet driven by Bessie Lowe, 43, Kennett. She recognized a 1960 Chevrolet, driven by her husband,

40 Blocks of Streets Paved in Lilbourn

By Leo Schade

LILBOURN - A 40-block street paving program was completed Thursday - another asset in Lilbourn's community betterment program. Lewis Stone is mayor.

The program included a majority of city streets. City clerk Jimmy Dambach, says that all the streets, which had been petitioned now are completed.

Cost was almost $40,000, half of which came from the gasoline tax. The other half will come from property tax.

In charge of the six-day construction program was Leo Hindman, engineer for the Delta Asphalt Inc., Cape Girardeau. A two-inch asphalt coating was laid on the 20-feet wide streets.

Paved streets attracted many children with bicycles and toys but produced expressions of concern for their safety.

The city has added a fogging machine to kill insects at a cost of $670. It was placed in use last week. The machine will cover the city three times each week. The cost of chemicals is expected to reach $500 for the season.

Move to Organize Regional Planning Agency

Initial steps for the organization of a regional planning commission in the six-county Bootheel area were taken last night in a meeting at the Holiday Inn.

The commission will serve Scott, Mississippi, Stoddard, New Madrid, Pemiscot and Dunklin counties. Eleven of the 57 governmental units in these counties were represented last night.

John Rogers, coordinator for local and regional planning at the office of state and regional planning and community development in Jefferson City, explained the purpose of a commission.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes says he is ready to designate a commission for the six-county area, Rogers pointed out. Four other commissions have been designated by the governor, including one in the Poplar Bluff area.

Rogers noted that the Bootheel has met the requirement of having at least 51 per cent of the governmental units in the area request that such a commission be designated. The number of governmental units expected to make the request will soon reach 100 per cent and will make the Bootheel the second in the state to achieve full participation.

Benefits of the commission, listed by Rogers:

To strengthen local governments, provide orderly utility development, develop a sound tax base, make more economical use of funds for basic needs, build and stabilize future economy, develop commercial and industrial potential and provide cooperative planning to conserve and protect recreational and natural resources.

The six-county area is ideal for formation of a regional planning commission because the counties share similar problems, including drainage, industrial and educational needs.

The commission will be autonomous. Services of the state office are given only in an advisory capacity, Rogers said.

Some of the programs commonly employed by regional planning commissions include:

1. Water and sewerage systems. This includes acquisition of loans and grants from the Farmers Home Administration for installation and improvement of rural water supply and distribution systems and the expansion of sewage collection and treatment systems. The program also includes utilization of grants under the Housing and Urban Development Act for construction of basic water and sewer facilities, which have been developed consistent with a comprehensive plan for area-wide improvement, and use of water pollution control act grants to help finance construction of sewage treatment works and improvement and repairs for existing plants.
2. Housing programs. This includes urban renewal, open space land program - acquisition and improvement of lands suitable for parks, recreational areas, conservation, scenic or historical purposes - and urban beautification improvement.
3. Community facilities, including loans for public works planning.
4. Libraries.
5. Outdoor recreation.
6. Hospital and medical facilities construction.
7. Nursing homes.
8. Education, including courses designed to assist in the solution of community problems.
9. Vocational education, including grants under the Vocational Education Act and the Manpower Development and Training Act.
10. Airports.
11. Arts and humanities.
12. Assistance to the aging.
13. Assistance to the poor.
14. Planning and public works.

By forming a commission, the area will increase its influence in acquiring state and federal aid, Rogers claimed. Instead of 57 governmental units applying for aid, the commission could apply for aid on an area-wide basis and avoid duplication of services.

Commissions are given top priority in applications for aid, he pointed out.

Thirty-three states participate in the commission plan.

Although money is scarce for follow-through programs of commissions, an ample supply of aid will be available within five years if the country is not involved in a major war, Rogers said.

The program requires faith, time and work, but the program will be successful where others have failed, he contended.

In other commissions communities that have had little interaction work harmoniously for the benefit of the region, Rogers said.

Pat Lea, chairman of the Sikeston advisory committee, was elected temporary chairman of the commission by acclamation.

Appointed to a temporary by-laws committee:

W. Raymert Miller, J.E. Childress and L. F. Wheeler, Scott county; P. J. Ponder, Bill Winchester, L. J. Schwab, Mississippi county; John Calvin and Hal Hunter, New Madrid county; V.L. Cruse, Buren Napper, Carl McFarland, Dunklin county; Leroy Bain, Lonzo Kearsey, Joe Taylor, Pemiscot county; Alvin Corbin, Willis Conner, Clyde Henson, Stoddard county.

It was decided to call the agency the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
SHOW-AND-TELL TIME

Senator Edward Vaughn Long (D-Mo.) is described by Roger Winship Stuart in a book title "Meet the Senators" as a "soft-spoken Missourian . . .with a broad background of experience."

A new experience for the senator is the now well-publicized allegation that he received $48,-000 for legal services from former Teamster boss James Hoffa's chief counsel during 1963-64, and that thereupon he conducted Senate subcommittee hearings on wiretapping and eavesdropping closely linked with Hoffa's futile attempts to stay out of prison.

Senator Long's advocacy of the rights of privacy and free speech has won him considerable fame since he entered the Senate in 1960. His "experience" has included banking, insurance, law practice and politics. There has been widespread sympathy for his inquiries into the practices of Federal agencies making criminal and tax investigations.

But the question of motive now posed is one which needs answering. With the ethics cases of Representative Adam Clayton Powell and Senator Thomas Dodd so much in the public eye, the revelations of the Edward Long case threaten to add dishonor to Congress.

Whatever the truth may be, the Senate had best find it and lay it before the citizens. Senator Long has in the past defended the public right to know with zeal. This time the right to privacy. As a public servant, his actions must be above suspicion.

Since suspicion has been raised, the Senate owes it to itself and the people to determine the truth and take appropraite action.

CONSIDER OUR WATER

It is the universal liquid of life and part of our very being. It is everywhere around us, in the air and earth. Without it we could not survive, nor could any plant, animal or other living thing.

It is a final necessity, for which man has devised no substitute.

Water can be so abundant as to invite waste and neglect. It can be so scarce as to set man in earnest contest for its vital uses.

It demands understanding and respect. It has the power under direction to turn the mighty turbines of Grand Coulee. Unmanaged, it can strike in the angry form and force of floods.

It can produce crops, trees and grass - or the ugliness of raw gullies cut into an unprotected countryside.

Water provides the drama of Old Faithful, the majesty of the Mississippi, and the grandeau of Niagara Falls. In its infinite variety it is a thirst-quenching drink for the children of Atlanta, a cooling accessory for the steel mills of Ohio, and vital irrigation for Arizona's sunny fields.

It appears as soaking rain on Olympia's forests, the fleecy hush of a Vermont snowfall, and the quick excitement of a Kentucky thunderstorm.

It is a miraculous gift of God, given to us for our refreshment and endless uses. But our neglect can waste it; our misuse can turn it into offensive sewers of pollution.

Water tests our sense of responsibility to God and man. It asks for care, requires our self-discipline, and responds to management.

This priceless water has been here before and by God's plan will be returned again and again for us to use according to our maturity, either with wisdom or with shameful neglect.

Consider our water. Consider it well.

GREENVILLE, S. C. AP - Gov. Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri told an audience of about 500 at the South Carolina Governor's dinner here Monday night that a third party movement is headed for "political oblivion."

He made no mention of Former Gov. George Wallace of Alabama as a third party candidate at the $24-a-plate affair to raise Democratic party funds.

"The Democratic Party's policies, goals and aims represent the greatest hope for more people than any other concerted political force available to me and my fellow Americans," he asserted.

If he wants to be reelected Governor of Missouri he had better forget Johnson and Long and work for the reelection of himself, Kirkpatrick, Eagleton and let the national ticket go where most Southeast Missourians are sentencing them to.

The free world has acted as if it was suddenly stricken with apoplexy since an audacious President Gamal Abdel Nasser has closed the Gulf of Aqaba to Israeli shipping.

Nasser is a small, tin-horn dictator but he will grow to become the same type of threat that the late German Strongman Adolf Hitler was to the world if he isn't stepped on soon.

Nasser's bluff hasn't been called.

He has not right to prevent any ship from entering or leaving the Gulf of Aqaba. It is not an Egyptian lake.

But our statesmen have wavered and quavered. The United Nations has called for deliberation rather than action. As a result Nasser's bold move has gone unchallenged. He has acted. The rest of the world has waited. Only pious statements have come from the free world.

Granted the United States involvement in Vietnam is substantial and that it should not be expected to act alone in disciplining Egypt, this country should not have taken a timid position.

At the outset instead of statements emphasizing our limitations as a world power, the stress should have been placed on the positive aspects of what this country was prepared to do to challenge Nasser.

The United States should have announced immediately that it was prepared to join France and Great Britain at once in reopening the Gulf of Aqaba to shipping of all nations, including Israel.

Israel cannot survive without access to the sea.

This country, France and Britain are committed to keeping the Strait of Tiran open to all nations.

Only Missouri's senior senator, Stuart Symington, has put the problem in approximately the proper focus and he hasn't gone far enough.

He urges "joint action by the United States, France and Great Britain to prevent aggression in the Near East."

"Preventing aggression" is too general a term. Both Egypt and Israel support this idea but they differ in what they define as aggression.

The joint action needed is to reopen the Gulf of Aqaba by force if necessary. It should be undertaken at once.

Nasser has gotten by with murder in the past.

If he succeeds in strangling Israel's economy by cutting off its shipping, he'll be increasingly more difficult to stop in the future.

America - indeed the world - has a big stake in the newest trouble in the Middle East. It is not a local dispute between Arabs and Jews.

Now is the time to put Nasser in his place.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

Expense account living has tempted more Americans into bad habits than the devil.

The most overpraised food item in Manhattan is the bagel.

Those who grow misty-eyed while talking about how good it is are generally speaking from memory. They probably haven't eaten one in a year.

One of the curses of modern prosperity is that a rich man now has a hard time finding anyone to break in his new shoes for him. In the old days a person of wealth usually had a poor relative wear his new shoes until the stiffness had been taken out of them.

Teen-agers are running out of new slang and turning to the old. For example, they now often use the term "boob" when they want to insult each other. That word, usually applied to a country yokel, was hot stuff in 1900.

We lose our values earlier in life now. A child begins to lose his when he no longer gets a thrill out of putting a penny in a machine and getting back a ball of gum.

Women who are overfond of cats usually have been disappointed in love earlier in life, or are so independent by nature that men shy away from them. That is what they admire in a cat — its seeming aloofness.

No matter how ill-gotten a man's gains may be, few who cluck their tongues about his character would refuse the chance to inherit his money.

The most overrated film currently being shown is "Blow-Up." It builds you up to a climax, then lets you down in Dullsville. But the intellectuals go for it, because they can't understand the symbolism. That is the biggest trouble with modern "intellectuals": They mistake artistic confusion for artistic genius.

If you think women act crazy at a department store bargain sale, go watch the New York Stock Exchange in action some time. Men are just as bad at their kind of bargain sales.

The guy who makes $15,000 a year today is usually in a more desperate financial strait than the one who makes only $6,000, because he is more likely to be living above his head.

So many nations dislike Uncle Sam because of his money that he feels like an orphan. But how many would rush to adopt him if he ever went broke?

Was It Sudden?

CONTENTMENT

A FARMER and his neighbor were reminiscing about mutual friends of their younger days, and the name of one with whom both had grown up was mentioned.

"He certainly has climbed high in the world since we three were schoolmates," said one.

"Yes," agreed the other, "but he is not happy. What he found on the upper levels was disappointing. The maxim by which he expressed his objectives in living was one familiar among us farmers -- 'The best apples are always at the top.' It is unreliable if contentment is desired."

There was once a fruit-grower who had a tree from which all the fruit had been picked except some that had grown on branches farthest from the ground.

"Those cherries look fine," the owner said to a friend, "but they are not worth the risk of picking them. One need only fall once to have a serious injury. And furthermore, the branches that can be safely reached supply all that we need. The birds can have the rest."

The friend expressed regret at the waste of the best of the fruit, whereupon the fruit-grower added, "The idea of the best being the hardest to get does not always hold true. Distance deceives in fruit as in people. The difficulty in reaching a situation rather than the actual value of what is obtained often distorts one's judgment. The cherries in the top of the tree are wormy!"

SPENDING AND TAXING

The reciprocal cause-and-effect relationship between federal spending and federal taxation is a puzzling subject. Nevertheless, anyone who wishes to understand fiscal developments must ponder it. To what extent do government spending needs affect taxation policies? And to what extent does the yield of the existing revenue system have an influence on spending?

This sounds like a hen-or-egg question that it might be amusing, but unprofitable, to study. Actually it has a direct bearing on an important current issue.

The country now has before it a proposal to raise income taxes by some $5 billion annually. What would be the future fiscal effects of enacting this increase?

A hasty answer might be that the tax increase would result in future deficits $5 billion less than they otherwise would be. But this assumes that the tax increase would have no feedback effect on spending levels. It might be just as reasonable to conclude that it would leave future deficits unchanged and simply encourage a level of government spending about $5 billion higher than would otherwise have prevailed.

Fiscal history doesn't give an unequivocal answer as to which result should be expected. But certain clues suggest that, under conditions relevant to the current situation, spending tends to be determined by the yield of the revenue system rather than vice versa.

On its face, this may seem difficult to believe. In the forty fiscal years between 1929 and 1968, expenditures exceeded revenues in all but eight. It would appear hard to maintain that spending has in any way been determined by, or limited by, revenue collections. The persistence of deficits might create the impression that this country's fiscal managers see no necessity for preserving any particular relationship between spending and taxing totals.

But this would be a superficial conclusion. The federal budget has varied over an enormous range during the past four decades. The degree to which revenue and spending totals have stayed close together is more impressive than the prevailing excess of spending over receipts.

So evidently there IS a tendency for revenues and spending to be tied together, albeit with a string that has some slack on it. And a look at the record suggests that, at least in certain circumstances, it is revenues that determine the order of magnitude of spending.

Between 1939 and 1947, federal receipts increased from $5 billion to $40 billion. Expenditures increased from $9 billion to $39 billion. Both sides of the budget made a quantum jump in the period spanning World War II. The fact that the orders of magnitude are the same must be more than a coincidence.

The same kind of result emerges if we examine the changes overlapping the Korean War. Between 1950 and 1954, spending increased from $40 to $67 billion and receipts increased from $36 billion to $64 billion. The higher level of revenues was reflected, not in a reduced deficit, but in increased spending.

One gets the impression that, during each of these war periods, a new higher-yielding revenue system was established and the country got used to it. In each case some of the tax increase was eliminated, but an important part was retained, after the war was over. The new higher level of tax collections encouraged a higher level of expenditures.

The same principle, in reverse, is illustrated by what happened at the time of the 1964 tax cut. For a period of about 18 months, while the cut was being studied and just after it was enacted, federal cash expenditures moved along a level line. The usually inexorable upward trend in spending was interrupted. Here again it appears that spending decisions were governed by taxation considerations, rather than vice versa.

The lesson for the present seems obvious. Enactment of an increase in taxes is more likely to provide support for a higher level of government spending than to reduce the size of future deficits. And resistance to the tax increase is more likely to result in curtailment of spending, than in an enlarged deficit.

Opposition to the President's proposal for a tax increase this year is not, despite the high probability of a deficit in 1968, a sign of fiscal irresponsibility on the part of the person who takes that stance. The deficit may be no greater without the tax increase than with it. And the record justifies a fear that wartime -- enacted tax increases, even if they are labeled temporary, tend to support a high level of government spending after the war is over.

U.S. ASSET:
ZEAL FOR PROGRESS

This month, 107 years ago, one of the most romantic episodes in American history began -- the Pony Express. The relay system cut communication time between St. Joseph, Mo., and Sacramento, Calif., from the 30 or 40 days required by stagecoaches to 14 days.

The Pony Express was fated to last only about 18 months because of the completion of the intercontinental telegraph. Even so, there were customers who couldn't wait, who were willing to pay what it cost for faster mail service.

To Alan S. Boyd, secretary of the new Department of Transportation, the Pony Express was an example of forced technology, of men pushing horsepower to the limits of its efficiency. It also illustrates the driving impatience of the American people for progress.

He cites the clipper ship of the 1840s and '50s as another example. Steamboats were already becoming competitive with sail when the swift clippers enjoyed their brief heyday. But Americans were unwilling to wait for the steamboat to be perfected. They forced sailing technology to its outermost limits.

We're doing the same thing today, says Boyd. We're building the supersonic transport -- pushing jet aviation to its practical limits -- even though we know it will be superseded by ever faster transportation 15 ot 20 years from now.

The secretary considers this impatience of Americans an admirable trait - - "one of the great and permanent characteristics of our nation."

While his examples are taken from communications and transportation, history is replete with others. We had hardly begun to populate the original 13 states, for instance, when we doubled the nation's size with the Louisiana Purchase.

Americans don't like to wait. Sometimes this trait has gotten us into trouble. It perpetually annoys our friends overseas. But American history will have reached an ominous juncture when this impatience for progress can no longer be called "one of the great and permanent characteristics of our nation."

A STRONGER VOICE

CONDIRP, the Congressional District Reform Plan to change the system of electing the President of the United States, would give the 39 smaller states a stronger voice.

Under this plan, presidential electors would be chosen in the same manner as members of Congress. That is, one elector would be named from each Congressional District and two electors in each state would be chosen at large, as U.S. Senators are chosen.

A resolution to submit a Constitutional Amendment placing the plan in effect has been introduced in the Senate by Senator Ernest Gruening of Alaska and in the House of Representatives by Rep. Basil L. Whitener of North Carolina.

Rep. Whitener, in addressing the House on his resolution, said: "It is becoming more apparent to the nation every day that a more even and equitable distribution of political power among the several states in the election of a President is an absolute necessity if the checks and balances inherent in the American system are to survive. The selection of electors by Congressional Districts throughout the country would eliminate the dominance and control of American political action by large population centers."

Senator Gruening, who represents the state with the smallest population to the Union, also called attention to the need for preserving the effectiveness of the voters of citizens of the smaller states. Only in this way can the states be kept as distinct entities. Such preservation is essential for the continuance of our Republic as conceived by the Founders of Freedom in the United States. HLH.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- When it comes to the use of government carpenters, the Johnson administration is completely bipartisan. It sends carpenters all the way to Texas for repairs on Luci Nugent's house, and it sent them to Gettysburg, Pa., to work on ex-president Eisenhower's house.

It's all part of the arrangement whereby the secret service is entrusted with protecting the president's family and ex-presidents of the United States.

Feisty Harry Truman has had no carpenter sent to Independence, Mo., because he feels safe with his Missouri neighbors and feels he doesn't need secret service men hanging around. He's entitled to it, but turned it down. Eisenhower, on the other hand, makes use of the secret service.

All this came up when Washington started buzzing over the report that a government carpenter and an electrician were flown all the way from Washington to Austin to add a nursery to the new $100,000 home of the president's daughter, Luci Nugent.

After checking the facts, this column can report that a carpenter and a electrician from the general services maintenance force were sent from Washington to Austin by commercial airliner to work on the Nugent home. For some unexplained reason, and unlike most of the public, they traveled first class.

It is not true, however, that they built a nursery for the president's expected grandchild. The electrician worked on the secret electronic system that the secret service has installed for the family's protection. The carpenter patched up after the electrical. They worked not only in the nursery but other rooms in the house.

We found that the general services administration has a carpenter and a painter already on the payroll in Austin. However, they are not cleared to work on secret projects.

Last month the general services administration also sent electricians to make improvements in the secret service detection system at ex-president Eisenhower's Gettysburg farm.

BUSINESS LEADERS AND JOB CORPS

With some of the biggest businessmen in the nation enthusiastically supporting the anti-poverty program, their official spokesman, "Nation's Business," organ or the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, has been knocking it.

This paradox may result from the fact that the U.S. Chamber of Commerce has now acquired a former GOP congressional ghost-writer, Miss Pat Goldman, who last year dished out a patchwork of old rumors and stale scandals for Republican congressmen regarding the antipoverty program.

At any rate, the criticism of nation's business is interesting for the fact that it represents the exact opposite view of most business leaders.

Its lead editorial for January attacked the job corps as a program "rammed through congress two and a half years ago with dreamy promises of rehabilitating 40,000 forsaken youths the first year, then 100,000 the second. The program has failed to meet even its first year goal." And it told in detail the story of Jim Gonzales, who never had "Pride in his work during his two year-long stints in the federal government's job corps. In both places he was paid for supposedly learning about auto mechanics. 'It was like some charity,' Jim Recalls."

Then he got a job in private industry and began to have pride.

Careful checking of the facts revealed that Gonzales, whose real first name is Jaime, had never been in the job corps at the time nation's business wrote the article. He did not serve "two year-long stints" in the job corps, and he applied for work in the job corps only in the winter of 1967, after the nation's business article was published.

Just how nation's business researchers could have dreamed up his long record is hard to imagine.

ROLL CALL OF BUSINESS

Meanwhile some of the big businessmen of the nation have gone on record publicly in support of the job corps. They include officials of IBM, Burroughs Adding Machine, RCA, Xerox, Litton Industries, Westinghouse, Montgomery Ward and International Tel & Tel.

Robert E. Brooker, president of Montgomery Ward, has recorded a series of radio spots similar to this one:

"We at Montgomery Ward have learned that the job corps is helping to prepare young people to be productive members of our expanding economy. . . and remember, when the job corps trains, the employer gains."

Testified Charles B. Thornton, chairman of Litton Industries: "In terms of the economic benefit and in terms of savings in the cost of relief, crime and institutional care, there is very much in it for us as businessmen."

Note -- Among the business leaders who serve on the anti-poverty advisory council are G.L. Phillippe, chairman, General Electric; Donald Douglas, Jr., president, Douglas Aircraft; Edgar F. Kaiser, chairman, Kaiser Industries; Gardner Symonds, chairman, Gennessee Gas; Thomas J. Watson, Jr., chairman, IBM; Roger P. Sonnabend, president, Hotel Corporation of America.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

New National Labor Chief Seen
Meany Names Heir Apparent --
A Specialist In Hard-Hitting 'Target' Unionizing Drives.

Washington, D.C.: -- Easy lies the head that wears the crown inside labor today. It rests squarely, albeit sometimes jauntily, upon the robust 72-year-old George Meany, who scoffs at retiring -- but the word within the sanctum is that he appears to have named a very apparent heir.

The new crown prince will wince at the description for he is a rugged whirl-windish sailor who always is where the action is, or rather it is where he is since he is Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers International Union.

If insiders are right, this will send rumbles across country soon and shake up many a community. And the evidence of the succession -- though not very impending -- seems to be there, all right.

It came about quite simply. Walter Reuther abdicated virtually all his titles not too long ago, including his 11-year-old chairmanship of the AFL-CIO's Standing Committee on Organization. This was the sign that he had forever abandoned hopes for leadership of the 14 million-member movement -- the free world's largest.

The other day there came to the desk of Paul Hall a short letter from Meany naming the seafarer as Reuther's successor to this crucial post.

Why crucial?

It was created to be the second spot in labor's hierarchy -- and by none other than the movement's special counsel at the time, Arthur J. Goldberg. There was much maneuvering back in 1955 when the AFL and CIO chieftains were jousting for position while merging their two massive organizations.

There never was any doubt that Meany would be president. But Reuther, even then not his most ardent admirer, wanted guarantees that he would some day succeed the "plumber." Goldberg, always the peacemaker and molder of compromises, devised the Committee on Organization. This would be the power seat. From this position Reuther could launch drives, stay in the public spotlight, crisscross the nation and deliver mass appeals to the masses.

This was fine with Meany. To show his good faith he not only agreed to Reuther, the former head of the CIO, controlling the strategic Committee on Organization, but also turned over most of the key departments to former CIO aides of Reuther.

Furthermore, Meany called in brother Victor Reuther and offered to appoint him special assistant to the AFL-CIO president. This would have put a Reuther right inside the sanctum. Victor Reuther rejected this and went to work for his brother as head of the Auto Union's own state department.

Still Meany did not pass over any chance to move the Reuthers and their colleagues closer to the central organization. The AFL-CIO president then named an auto union leader, Jack Livingston, Director of Organization -- in a sense a subsidiary of the committee. When Livingston resigned, Meany replaced him with another auto union man, Bill Kirscher.

It positively was Meany's intention to resign sometime along 1963 or '65. But Reuther cut loose on him and Meany never quits under tongue lash or firebrands. So he stayed. And he loves it.

Now Paul Hall is in Reuther's old juggernaut. The sailor, who burns daylight and sometimes flies 10 to 15 thousand miles a week, plans to unionize the ununionized.

"Target Organization," he calls it.

"Remember when the CIO had operation Dixie?" he asked an inquiring friend the other day. "It could not succeed. It was too broad. It dissipated labor's strength.

"But, let us zoom in on a target and whittle down the size of the battlefield but not the size of our army or war chest."

Though he has flayed the auto union leader at the drop of a Reutherian dialectic, Hall praised him for developing concentration tactics -- especially in the Los Angeles area. There, says Hall, in one of the toughest areas in which labor can attempt to unionize, target concentration has succeeded.

Some years ago the region was selected by the national organizing committee for concentration. All unions in the Los Angeles and Orange Counties were set up in divisions. Then they created a "Combined Divisions" system. They unionized anybody who would join in any sort of plant or shop. Then the workers were sifted into their proper unions.

Last Feb. 20 the Combined Divisions representatives met in the Rodger Young auditorium. They heard that they had unionized 94,930 in all in the counties.

Now Hall will try to emulate this in other target areas. To use his own word, there will be many a rumble throughout the land.

Thus easy lies the head that wears the crown inside labor today. He has a stalwart by his side.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
SHOW-AND-TELL TIME

Senator Edward Vaughn Long (D-Mo.) is described by Roger Winship Stuart in a book title "Meet the Senators" as a "soft-spoken Missourian . . .with a broad background of experience."

A new experience for the senator is the now well-publicized allegation that he received $48,000 for legal services from former Teamster boss James Hoffa's chief counsel during 1963-64, and that thereupon he conducted Senate subcommittee hearings on wiretapping and eavesdropping closely linked with Hoffa's futile attempts to stay out of prison.

Senator Long's advocacy of the rights of privacy and free speech has won him considerable fame since he entered the Senate in 1960. His "experience" has included banking, insurance, law practice and politics. There has been widespread sympathy for his inquiries into the practices of Federal agencies making criminal and tax investigations.

But the question of motive now posed is one which needs answering. With the ethics cases of Representative Adam Clayton Powell and Senator Thomas Dodd so much in the public eye, the revelations of the Edward Long case threaten to add dishonor to Congress.

Whatever the truth may be, the Senate had best find it and lay it before the citizens. Senator Long has in the past defended the public right to know with zeal. This time the right to privacy. As a public servant, his actions must be above suspicion.

Since suspicion has been raised, the Senate owes it to itself and the people to determine the truth and take appropraite action.

CONSIDER OUR WATER

It is the universal liquid of life and part of our very being. It is everywhere around us, in the air and earth. Without it we could not survive, nor could any plant, animal or other living thing.

It is a final necessity, for which man has devised no substitute.

Water can be so abundant as to invite waste and neglect. It can be so scarce as to set man in earnest contest for its vital uses.

It demands understanding and respect. It has the power under direction to turn the mighty turbines of Grand Coulee. Unmanaged, it can strike in the angry form and force of floods.

It can produce crops, trees and grass - or the ugliness of raw gullies cut into an unprotected countryside.

Water provides the drama of Old Faithful, the majesty of the Mississippi, and the grandeau of Niagara Falls. In its infinite variety it is a thirst-quenching drink for the children of Atlanta, a cooling accessory for the steel mills of Ohio, and vital irrigation for Arizona's sunny fields.

It appears as soaking rain on Olympia's forests, the fleecy hush of a Vermont snowfall, and the quick excitement of a Kentucky thunderstorm.

It is a miraculous gift of God, given to us for our refreshment and endless uses. But our neglect can waste it; our misuse can turn it into offensive sewers of pollution.

Water tests our sense of responsibility to God and man. It asks for care, requires our self-discipline, and responds to management.

This priceless water has been here before and by God's plan will be returned again and again for us to use according to our maturity, either with wisdom or with shameful neglect.

Consider our water. Consider it well.

The free world has acted as if it was suddenly stricken with apoplexy since an audacious President Gamal Abdel Nasser has closed the Gulf of Aqaba to Israeli shipping.

At the outset instead of statements emphasizing our limitations as a world power, the stress should have been placed on the positive aspects of what this country was prepared to do to challenge Nasser.

The United States should have announced immediately that it was prepared to join France and Great Britain at once in reopening the Gulf of Aqaba to shipping of all nations, including Israel.

Israel cannot survive without access to the sea.

This country, France and Britain are committed to keeping the Strait of Tiran open to all nations.

Only Missouri's senior senator, Stuart Symington, has put the problem in approximately the proper focus and he hasn't gone far enough.

He urges "joint action by the United States, France and Great Britain to prevent aggression in the Near East."

"Preventing aggression" is too general a term. Both Egypt and Israel support this idea but they differ in what they define as aggression.

The joint action needed is to reopen the Gulf of Aqaba by force if necessary. It should be undertaken at once.

Nasser has gotten by with murder in the past.

If he succeeds in strangling Israel's economy by cutting off its shipping, he'll be increasingly more difficult to stop in the future.

America - indeed the world - has a big stake in the newest trouble in the Middle East. It is not a local dispute between Arabs and Jews.

Now is the time to put Nasser in his place.

Expense account living has tempted more Americans into bad habits than the devil.

The most overpraised food item in Manhattan is the bagel.

Those who grow misty-eyed while talking about how good it is are generally speaking from memory. They probably haven't eaten one in a year.

One of the curses of modern prosperity is that a rich man now has a hard time finding anyone to break in his new shoes for him. In the old days a person of wealth usually had a poor relative wear his new shoes until the stiffness had been taken out of them.

Teen-agers are running out of new slang and turning to the old. For example, they now often use the term "boob" when they want to insult each other. That word, usually applied to a country yokel, was hot stuff in 1900.

We lose our values earlier in life now. A child begins to lose his when he no longer gets a thrill out of putting a penny in a machine and getting back a ball of gum.

Women who are overfond of cats usually have been disappointed in love earlier in life, or are so independent by nature that men shy away from them. That is what they admire in a cat — its seeming aloofness.

No matter how ill-gotten a man's gains may be, few who cluck their tongues about his character would refuse the chance to inherit his money.

The most overrated film currently being shown is "Blow-Up." It builds you up to a climax, then lets you down in Dullsville. But the intellectuals go for it, because they can't understand the symbolism. That is the biggest trouble with modern "intellectuals": They mistake artistic confusion for artistic genius.

If you think women act crazy at a department store bargain sale, go watch the New York Stock Exchange in action some time. Men are just as bad at their kind of bargain sales.

The guy who makes $15,000 a year today is usually in a more desperate financial strait than the one who makes only $6,000, because he is more likely to be living above his head.

So many nations dislike Uncle Sam because of his money that he feels like an orphan. But how many would rush to adopt him if he ever went broke?

Was It Sudden?

CONTENTMENT

A FARMER and his neighbor were reminiscing about mutual friends of their younger days, and the name of one with whom both had grown up was mentioned.

"He certainly has climbed high in the world since we three were schoolmates," said one.

"Yes," agreed the other, "but he is not happy. What he found on the upper levels was disappointing. The maxim by which he expressed his objectives in living was one familiar among us farmers -- 'The best apples are always at the top.' It is unreliable if contentment is desired."

There was once a fruit-grower who had a tree from which all the fruit had been picked except some that had grown on branches farthest from the ground.

"Those cherries look fine," the owner said to a friend, "but they are not worth the risk of picking them. One need only fall once to have a serious injury. And furthermore, the branches that can be safely reached supply all that we need. The birds can have the rest."

The friend expressed regret at the waste of the best of the fruit, whereupon the fruit-grower added, "The idea of the best being the hardest to get does not always hold true. Distance deceives in fruit as in people. The difficulty in reaching a situation rather than the actual value of what is obtained often distorts one's judgment. The cherries in the top of the tree are wormy!"

SPENDING AND TAXING

The reciprocal cause-and-effect relationship between federal spending and federal taxation is a puzzling subject. Nevertheless, anyone who wishes to understand fiscal developments must ponder it. To what extent do government spending needs affect taxation policies? And to what extent does the yield of the existing revenue system have an influence on spending?

This sounds like a hen-or-egg question that it might be amusing, but unprofitable, to study. Actually it has a direct bearing on an important current issue.

The country now has before it a proposal to raise income taxes by some $5 billion annually. What would be the future fiscal effects of enacting this increase?

A hasty answer might be that the tax increase would result in future deficits $5 billion less than they otherwise would be. But this assumes that the tax increase would have no feedback effect on spending levels. It might be just as reasonable to conclude that it would leave future deficits unchanged and simply encourage a level of government spending about $5 billion higher than would otherwise have prevailed.

Fiscal history doesn't give an unequivocal answer as to which result should be expected. But certain clues suggest that, under conditions relevant to the current situation, spending tends to be determined by the yield of the revenue system rather than vice versa.

On its face, this may seem difficult to believe. In the forty fiscal years between 1929 and 1968, expenditures exceeded revenues in all but eight. It would appear hard to maintain that spending has in any way been determined by, or limited by, revenue collections. The persistence of deficits might create the impression that this country's fiscal managers see no necessity for preserving any particular relationship between spending and taxing totals.

But this would be a superficial conclusion. The federal budget has varied over an enormous range during the past four decades. The degree to which revenue and spending totals have stayed close together is more impressive than the prevailing excess of spending over receipts.

So evidently there IS a tendency for revenues and spending to be tied together, albeit with a string that has some slack on it. And a look at the record suggests that, at least in certain circumstances, it is revenues that determine the order of magnitude of spending.

Between 1939 and 1947, federal receipts increased from $5 billion to $40 billion. Expenditures increased from $9 billion to $39 billion. Both sides of the budget made a quantum jump in the period spanning World War II. The fact that the orders of magnitude are the same must be more than a coincidence.

The same kind of result emerges if we examine the changes overlapping the Korean War. Between 1950 and 1954, spending increased from $40 to $67 billion and receipts increased from $36 billion to $64 billion. The higher level of revenues was reflected, not in a reduced deficit, but in increased spending.

One gets the impression that, during each of these war periods, a new higher-yielding revenue system was established and the country got used to it. In each case some of the tax increase was eliminated, but an important part was retained, after the war was over. The new higher level of tax collections encouraged a higher level of expenditures.

The same principle, in reverse, is illustrated by what happened at the time of the 1964 tax cut. For a period of about 18 months, while the cut was being studied and just after it was enacted, federal cash expenditures moved along a level line. The usually inexorable upward trend in spending was interrupted. Here again it appears that spending decisions were governed by taxation considerations, rather than vice versa.

The lesson for the present seems obvious. Enactment of an increase in taxes is more likely to provide support for a higher level of government spending than to reduce the size of future deficits. And resistance to the tax increase is more likely to result in curtailment of spending, than in an enlarged deficit.

Opposition to the President's proposal for a tax increase this year is not, despite the high probability of a deficit in 1968, a sign of fiscal irresponsibility on the part of the person who takes that stance. The deficit may be no greater without the tax increase than with it. And the record justifies a fear that wartime -- enacted tax increases, even if they are labeled temporary, tend to support a high level of government spending after the war is over.

U.S. ASSET:
ZEAL FOR PROGRESS

This month, 107 years ago, one of the most romantic episodes in American history began -- the Pony Express. The relay system cut communication time between St. Joseph, Mo., and Sacramento, Calif., from the 30 or 40 days required by stagecoaches to 14 days.

The Pony Express was fated to last only about 18 months because of the completion of the intercontinental telegraph. Even so, there were customers who couldn't wait, who were willing to pay what it cost for faster mail service.

To Alan S. Boyd, secretary of the new Department of Transportation, the Pony Express was an example of forced technology, of men pushing horsepower to the limits of its efficiency. It also illustrates the driving impatience of the American people for progress.

He cites the clipper ship of the 1840s and '50s as another example. Steamboats were already becoming competitive with sail when the swift clippers enjoyed their brief heyday. But Americans were unwilling to wait for the steamboat to be perfected. They forced sailing technology to its outermost limits.

We're doing the same thing today, says Boyd. We're building the supersonic transport -- pushing jet aviation to its practical limits -- even though we know it will be superseded by ever faster transportation 15 ot 20 years from now.

The secretary considers this impatience of Americans an admirable trait - - "one of the great and permanent characteristics of our nation."

While his examples are taken from communications and transportation, history is replete with others. We had hardly begun to populate the original 13 states, for instance, when we doubled the nation's size with the Louisiana Purchase.

Americans don't like to wait. Sometimes this trait has gotten us into trouble. It perpetually annoys our friends overseas. But American history will have reached an ominous juncture when this impatience for progress can no longer be called "one of the great and permanent characteristics of our nation."

H.L. Hunt Says

A STRONGER VOICE

CONDIRP, the Congressional District Reform Plan to change the system of electing the President of the United States, would give the 39 smaller states a stronger voice.

Under this plan, presidential electors would be chosen in the same manner as members of Congress. That is, one elector would be named from each Congressional District and two electors in each state would be chosen at large, as U.S. Senators are chosen.

A resolution to submit a Constitutional Amendment placing the plan in effect has been introduced in the Senate by Senator Ernest Gruening of Alaska and in the House of Representatives by Rep. Basil L. Whitener of North Carolina.

Rep. Whitener, in addressing the House on his resolution, said: "It is becoming more apparent to the nation every day that a more even and equitable distribution of political power among the several states in the election of a President is an absolute necessity if the checks and balances inherent in the American system are to survive. The selection of electors by Congressional Districts throughout the country would eliminate the dominance and control of American political action by large population centers."

Senator Gruening, who represents the state with the smallest population to the Union, also called attention to the need for preserving the effectiveness of the voters of citizens of the smaller states. Only in this way can the states be kept as distinct entities. Such preservation is essential for the continuance of our Republic as conceived by the Founders of Freedom in the United States. HLH.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- When it comes to the use of government carpenters, the Johnson administration is completely bipartisan. It sends carpenters all the way to Texas for repairs on Luci Nugent's house, and it sent them to Gettysburg, Pa., to work on ex-president Eisenhower's house.

It's all part of the arrangement whereby the secret service is entrusted with protecting the president's family and ex-presidents of the United States.

Feisty Harry Truman has had no carpenter sent to Independence, Mo., because he feels safe with his Missouri neighbors and feels he doesn't need secret service men hanging around. He's entitled to it, but turned it down. Eisenhower, on the other hand, makes use of the secret service.

All this came up when Washington started buzzing over the report that a government carpenter and an electrician were flown all the way from Washington to Austin to add a nursery to the new $100,000 home of the president's daughter, Luci Nugent.

After checking the facts, this column can report that a carpenter and a electrician from the general services maintenance force were sent from Washington to Austin by commercial airliner to work on the Nugent home. For some unexplained reason, and unlike most of the public, they traveled first class.

It is not true, however, that they built a nursery for the president's expected grandchild. The electrician worked on the secret electronic system that the secret service has installed for the family's protection. The carpenter patched up after the electricial. They worked not only in the nursery but other rooms in the house.

We found that the general services administration has a carpenter and a painter already on the payroll in Austin. However, they are not cleared to work on secret projects.

Last month the general services administration also sent electricians to make improvements in the secret service detection system at ex-president Eisenhower's Gettysburg farm.

BUSINESS LEADERS AND JOB CORPS

With some of the biggest businessmen in the nation enthusiastically supporting the anti-poverty program, their official spokesman, "Nation's Business," organ or the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, has been knocking it.

This paradox may result from the fact that the U.S. Chamber of Commerce has now acquired a former GOP congressional ghost-writer, Miss Pat Goldman, who last year dished out a patchwork of old rumors and stale scandals for Republican congressmen regarding the antipoverty program.

At any rate, the criticism of nation's business is interesting for the fact that it represents the exact opposite view of most business leaders.

Its lead editorial for January attacked the job corps as a program "rammed through congress two and a half years ago with dreamy promises of rehabilitating 40,000 forsaken youths the first year, then 100,000 the second. The program has failed to meet even its first year goal." And it told in detail the story of Jim Gonzales, who never had "Pride in his work during his two year-long stints in the federal government's job corps. In both places he was paid for supposedly learning about auto mechanics. 'It was like some charity,' Jim Recalls."

Then he got a job in private industry and began to have pride.

Careful checking of the facts revealed that Gonzales, whose real first name is Jaime, had never been in the job corps at the time nation's business wrote the article. He did not serve "two year-long stints" in the job corps, and he applied for work in the job corps only in the winter of 1967, after the nation's business article was published.

Just how nation's business researchers could have dreamed up his long record is hard to imagine.

ROLL CALL OF BUSINESS

Meanwhile some of the big businessmen of the nation have gone on record publicly in support of the job corps. They include officials of IBM, Burroughs Adding Machine, RCA, Xerox, Litton Industries, Westinghouse, Montgomery Ward and International Tel & Tel.

Robert E. Brooker, president of Montgomery Ward, has recorded a series of radio spots similar to this one:

"We at Montgomery Ward have learned that the job corps is helping to prepare young people to be productive members of our expanding economy. . . and remember, when the job corps trains, the employer gains."

Testified Charles B. Thornton, chairman of Litton Industries: "In terms of the economic benefit and in terms of savings in the cost of relief, crime and institutional care, there is very much in it for us as businessmen."

Note -- Among the business leaders who serve on the anti-poverty advisrory council are G.L. Phillippe, chairman, General Electric; Donald Douglas, Jr., president, Douglas Aircraft; Edgar F. Kaiser, chairman, Kaiser Industries; Gardner Symonds, chairman, Gennesee Gas; Thomas J. Watson, Jr., chairman, IBM; Roger P. Sonnabend, president, Hotel Corporation of America.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

New National Labor Chief Seen Meany Names Heir Apparent -- A Specialist In Hard-Hitting 'Target' Unionizing Drives.

Washington, D.C.: -- Easy lies the head that wears the crown inside labor today. It rests squarely, albeit sometimes jauntily, upon the robust 72-year-old George Meany, who scoffs at retiring -- but the word within the sanctum is that he appears to have named a very apparent heir.

The new crown prince will wince at the description for he is a rugged whirl-windish sailor who always is where the action is, or rather it is where he is since he is Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers International Union.

If insiders are right, this will send rumbles across country soon and shake up many a community. And the evidence of the succession -- though not very impending -- seems to be there, all right.

It came about quite simply. Walter Reuther abdicated virtually all his titles not too long ago, including his 11-year-old chairmanship of the AFL - CIO's Standing Committee on Organization. This was the sign that he had forever abandoned hopes for leadership of the 14 million-member movement -- the free world's largest.

The other day there came to the desk of Paul Hall a short letter from Meany naming the seafarer as Reuther's successor to this crucial post.

Why crucial?

It was created to be the second spot in labor's hierarchy -- and by none other than the movement's special counsel at the time, Arthur J. Goldberg. There was much maneuvering back in 1955 when the AFL and CIO chieftains were jousting for position while merging their two massive organizations.

There never was any doubt that Meany would be president. But Reuther, even then not his most ardent admirer, wanted guarantees that he would some day succeed the "plumber." Goldberg, always the peacemaker and molder of compromises, devised the Committee on Organization. This would be the power seat. From this position Reuther could launch drives, stay in the public spotlight, crisscross the nation and deliver mass appeals to the masses.

This was fine with Meany. To show his good faith he not only agreed to Reuther, the former head of the CIO, controlling the strategic Committee on Organization, but also turned over most of the key departments to former CIO aides of Reuther.

Furthermore, Meany called in brother Victor Reuther and offered to appoint him special assistant to the AFL-CIO president. This would have put a Reuther right inside the sanctum. Victor Reuther rejected this and went to work for his brother as head of the Auto Union's own state department.

Still Meany did not pass over any chance to move the Reuthers and their colleagues closer to the central organization. The AFL-CIO president then named an auto union leader, Jack Livingston, Director of Organization -- in a sense a subsidiary of the committee. When Livingston resigned, Meany replaced him with another auto union man, Bill Kirscher.

It positively was Meany's intention to resign sometime along 1963 or '65. But Reuther cut loose on him and Meany never quits under tongue lash or firebrands. So he stayed. And he loves it.

Now Paul Hall is in Reuther's old juggernaut. The sailor, who burns daylight and sometimes flies 10 to 15 thousand miles a week, plans to unionize the ununionized.

"Target Organization," he calls it.

"Remember when the CIO had operation Dixie?" he asked an inquiring friend the other day. "It could not succeed. It was too broad. It dissipated labor's strength.

"But, let us zoom in on a target and whittle down the size of the battlefield but not the size of our army or war chest."

Though he has flayed the auto union leader at the drop of a Reutherian dialectic, Hall praised him for developing concentration tactics -- especially in the Los Angeles area. There, says Hall, in one of the toughest areas in which labor can attempt to unionize, target concentration has succeeded.

Some years ago the region was selected by the national organizing committee for concentration. All unions in the Los Angeles and Orange Counties were set up in divisions. Then they created a "Combined Divisions" system. They unionized anybody who would join in any sort of plant or shop. Then the workers were sifted into their proper unions.

Last Feb. 20 the Combined Divisions representatives met in the Rodger Young auditorium. They heard that they had unionized 94,930 in all in the counties.

Now Hall will try to emulate this in other target areas. To use his own word, there will be many a rumble throughout the land.

Thus easy lies the head that wears the crown inside labor today. He has a stalwart by his side.

10 Inning Game To Birds

Jackson Gets Win In Relief

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals scored their ninth-inning runs Thursday night in a comedy of errors. But Bobby Tolan's 10th inning triple was no laughing matter—especially to the Atlanta Braves.

The little outfielder tripled off loser Clay Carrol, 2-6, to left center field to drive in Phil Gagliano as the Cardinals beat Atlanta, 5-4. But it took a two-base error, a wild pitch and two passed balls before Tolan got the chance to play the hero.

Pinchhitter John Romano reached second in the ninth on a throwing error by third baseman Clete Boyer. Knuckleballer Phil Niekro replaced Denny Lemaster on the mound. Dick Hughes, who ran for Romano, then took third on a wild pitch and scored on Lou Brock's fly ball.

Julian Javier walked and went to third as catcher Joe Torre had more trouble finding the ball than batter Curt Flood. When Flood did find it he singled to left and scored Javier to tie the game.

How could Flood hit the ball if Torre couldn't even catch it?

"That's a good question," Flood said. "The way Niekro was missing the plate with the knuckler I thought he would go to something else—and he did. I hit a slider for the single."

"If he'd been throwing strikes," Flood continued. "he'd have really been vicious. That ball was really moving. I didn't know where the ball was going. He didn't even know where it was going."

Tolan knew where his ball was going, but not how far.

"I knew the ball was going to get in there, but I didn't think it would go for extra bases," Tolan said. He kept running and reached third before Gagliano touched home for the winning run.

Tolan, a 21-year-old Los Angeles resident is happy about the progress he has made since he came up late last season and hit .172 in 43 games with the Cardinals. His batting average now is .343.

"This year I figure I've really come into my own in more ways," he said. "I feel a lot better. I'm even pulling the ball more."

Tolan said he put on some weight last winter while on duty with the Army reserves and although he shed some of the extra poundage he feels stronger.

He also picked up some batting tips over the winter.

"A friend of mine, Carl Kiel, who's a scout for Houston, told me I should tilt my bat instead of holding it straight up." Tolan said pitchers no longer were able to jam him with an inside pitch.

Al Jackson, 4-2, got the victory Thursday night with one perfect inning in relief.

Festival Of Champions Saturday

JONESBORO, ARK. - State records may tumble by the dozen when the Festival of Champions invitational meet is run off at Arkansas State University's Kays Stadium Saturday. The meet will bring together the best athletes in the state plus top-notch performers throughout the MidSouth.

With stern competition to push the tracksters, several state marks are in danger. During the season 10 state records were tied or broken in one of the best springs in the sport.

A class field of thoroughbreds make the 100-yard dash a primary target of the runners even though state record holder Leroy Thomas had to withdraw from the meet because of an injury. Other 9.5 sprinters Robert Brown of Arkansas AM&N, Jackie Seale of Southern State and Mike Maxwell of Arkansas A&M along with Ezra Burnham of Philander Smith and Bill Caputo of Arkansas State, who has clocked a 9.4 wind aided time, boost the chances for a possible record.

Record holder Elbert Stinson in the 220 and 400 dashes will be in both events and the Arkansas AM&N star may be pushed to new lows with a 220 field including Burnham (21.4), Seale (21.4), Maxwell (21.6) and Caputo (21.9) and a quartermile list that includes teammate Harold Francis (47.2), AIC record holder Elgin Stokes of Southern State (48.1), Harding's Kent Smith (48.8) and Memphis State's Richard Holt (47.8).

Harding's distance runner Jim Crawford, the state record holder in the mile, two-mile and three-mile runs, will shoot for the 880-yard record in the Festival against such half milers as Earl Goldman of Arkansas AM&N (1:52.2), McArthur McGlaughlin of Arkansas AM&N (1:54.2), Richard Vernon of Memphis State (1:53.3) and Randy Erwin of Arkansas State (1:54.0). Crawford's best in the event is 1:52.5 in the AIC meet.

A star-studded field of distance men will push for new marks in the mile and two-mile with A-State's Bob Giersberg, State College's Ricky Richardson, Harding's Joe Boyle and Cliff Clark heading the Arkansas list.

Mississippi State star Don Hunt, the Southeast Conference mile and two-mile champion, will feature the field which hopes to break Crawford's state standards of 4:04.2 in the four lap event and 9:00.4 in the two mile.

Memphis State's Randy Carlton (53.4) tops a speedy field of 440 hurdlers including such state striders as David Johnston of State College (53.6), Jay Philbrick of Henderson (54.0), Kent Smith of Harding (53.5) the AIC champ, and Mike Turner of Quachita (54.9).

Arkansas AM&N, with pressure from Southern State, Memphis State and Philander Smith may be extended into record times in the 440-yard and mile relays. The Golden Lions quartets hold both state records of 40.2 and 3:06.1. The latter time is the second fastest in the nation this spring.

Host school Arkansas State is given the best chance for a Mid-South champion in any of four field events in which the Indians own a top time.

State high jump standard holder Jerald Spencer of ASU has a year's best of 6-8 1/4 in his speciality, only a Quarter of an inch under his state record. Spencer will also vie in the triple jump (45-4 3/4) along with state record holder and teammate Eddie Pruitt (45-6 3/4) and Danny Carroll (46-01/2w). Memphis State's Ted Davis will merit the favorite's roll in the latter event, however, with his season's best of 48-3.

Two other state record holders Jeff Lansdale and David Young will head up the field in the javelin and shot put, respectively. Lansdale who has a best of 247-1 in the spear throwing has a 218 this spring to head the entries while Young who has done nearly 56 feet has a spring's best of 53-6.

Two Arkansas AM&N jumpers are expected to fight it out for the long jump championship with Robert Brown owning a 24-4 and Jesse Sibert having a 24-0. John Cunningham of Quachita (23-5-1/2), Mike Hunnicutt of Southern State (23-4), Johnston of State College (23-7) and Davis of Memphis State (23-6) are other strong entries.

Hole-in-One Scored On 12th In Memphis Open

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)— Babe Hiskey trailed leader Dave Hill going into the second round of the $100,000 Memphis Open Golf Tournament today, but the new car he won for a hole-in-one soothed the pain.

Hill, from Jackson, Mich., shot a 5-under-par 65 in the opening round Thursday and used a powerful driving game to post an eagle 3, three birdies and 14 pars.

Chasing Hill as play resumed today were Bert Weaver at 66 and four others bunched at 67—Gary Player, Harold Henning, Dave Marr and Hiskey.

Next came Dave Stockton, Dave Ragan, Steve Spray and Randi Petri with 68s. Defending champion Bert Yancey shot a par-70, and former champ Jack Nicklaus soared to a 77.

Hiskey, 28, of Burley, Idaho, jumped to an early lead with a 7-iron hole-in-one on the 182-yard 12th. And he missed another hole-in-one by two inches on the 17th.

But the putter was his big stick and perhaps the deadliest club on the course. Hiskey was not accurate with his tee shots and he hit only 12 greens in regulation. But he tied for first on the greens—with eight one-putts and nine two-putts.

A 30-footer on the 500-yard 16th gave him an eagle-3, and he sank 25-foot putts for a birdie and a par.

10 Inning Game To Birds

Jackson Gets Win In Relief

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals scored their ninth-inning runs Thursday night in a comedy of errors. But Bobby Tolan's 10th inning triple was no laughing matter—especially to the Atlanta Braves.

The little outfielder tripled off loser Clay Carrol, 2-6, to left center field to drive in Phil Gagliano as the Cardinals beat Atlanta, 5-4. But it took a two-base error, a wild pitch and two passed balls before Tolan got the chance to play the hero.

Pinchhitter John Romano reached second in the ninth on a throwing error by third baseman Clete Boyer. Knuckleballer Phil Niekro replaced Denny Lemaster on the mound. Dick Hughes, who ran for Romano, then took third on a wild pitch and scored on Lou Brock's fly ball.

Julian Javier walked and went to third as catcher Joe Torre had more trouble finding the ball than batter Curt Flood. When Flood did find it he singled to left and scored Javier to tie the game.

How could Flood hit the ball if Torre couldn't even catch it?

"That's a good question," Flood said. "The way Niekro was missing the plate with the knuckler I thought he would go to something else—and he did. I hit a slider for the single."

"If he'd been throwing strikes," Flood continued. "he'd have really been vicious. That ball was really moving. I didn't know where the ball was going. He didn't even know where it was going."

Tolan knew where his ball was going, but not how far.

"I knew the ball was going to get in there, but I didn't think it would go for extra bases," Tolan said. He kept running and reached third before Gagliano touched home for the winning run.

Tolan, a 21-year-old Los Angeles resident is happy about the progress he has made since he came up late last season and hit .172 in 43 games with the Cardinals. His batting average now is .343.

"This year I figure I've really come into my own in more ways," he said. "I feel a lot better. I'm even pulling the ball more."

Tolan said he put on some weight last winter while on duty with the Army reserves and although he shed some of the extra poundage he feels stronger.

He also picked up some batting tips over the winter.

"A friend of mine, Carl Kiel, who's a scout for Houston, told me I should tilt my bat instead of holding it straight up." Tolan said pitchers no longer were able to jam him with an inside pitch.

Al Jackson, 4-2, got the victory Thursday night with one perfect inning in relief.

Festival Of Champions Saturday

JONESBORO, Ark. - State records may tumble by the dozen when the Festival of Champions invitational meet is run off at Arkansas State University's Kays Stadium Saturday. The meet will bring together the best athletes in the state plus top-notch performers throughout the MidSouth.

With stern competition to push the tracksters, several state marks are in danger. During the season 10 state records were tied or broken in one of the best springs in the sport.

A class field of thoroughbreds make the 100-yard dash a primary target of the runners even though state record holder Leroy Thomas had to withdraw from the meet because of an injury.

Other 9.5 sprinters Robert Brown of Arkansas AM&N, Jackie Seale of Southern State and Mike Maxwell of Arkansas A&M along with Ezra Burnham of Philander Smith and Bill Caputo of Arkansas State, who has clocked a 9.4 wind aided time, boost the chances for a possible record.

Record holder Elbert Stinson in the 220 and 400 dashes will be in both events and the Arkansas AM&N star may be pushed to new lows with a 220 field including Burnham (21.4), Seale (21.4), Maxwell (21.6) and Caputo (21.9) and a quartermile list that includes teammate Harold Francis (47.2), AIC record holder Elgin Stokes of Southern State (48.1), Harding's Kent Smith (48.8) and Memphis State's Richard Holt (47.8).

Harding's distance runner Jim Crawford, the state record holder in the mile, two-mile and three-mile runs, will shoot for the 880-yard record in the Festival against such half milers as Earl Goldman of Arkansas AM&N (1:52.2), McArthur McGlaughlin of Arkansas AM&N (1:54.2), Richard Vernon of Memphis State (1:53.3) and Randy Erwin of Arkansas State (1:54.0). Crawford's best in the event is 1:-52.5 in the AIC meet.

A star-studded field of distance men will push for new marks in the mile and two-mile with A-State's Bob Giersberg, State College's Ricky Richardson, Harding's Joe Boyle and Cliff Clark heading the Arkansas list.

Mississippi State star Don Hunt, the Southeast Conference mile and two-mile champion, will feature the field which hopes to break Crawford's state standards of 4:04.2 in the four lap event and 9:00.4 in the two mile.

Memphis State's Randy Carlton (53.4) tops a speedy field of 440 hurdlers including such state striders as David Johnston of State College (53.6), Jay Philbrick of Henderson (54.0), Kent Smith of Harding (53.5) the AIC champ, and Mike Turner of Quachita (54.9).

Arkansas AM&N, with pressure from Southern State, Memphis State and Philander Smith may be extended into record times in the 440-yard and mile relays. The Golden Lions quartets hold both state records of 40.2 and 3:06.1. The latter time is the second fastest in the nation this spring.

Host school Arkansas State is given the best chance for a MidSouth champion in any of four field events in which the Indians own a top time.

State high jump standard holder Jerald Spencer of ASU has a year's best of 6-8 1/4 in his speciality, only a Quarter of an inch under his state record. Spencer will also vie in the triple jump (45-4 3/4) along with state record holder and teammate Eddie Pruitt (45-6 3/4) and Danny Carroll (46-01/2w). Memphis State's Ted Davis will merit the favorite's roll in the latter event, however, with his season's best of 48-3.

Two other state record holders Jeff Lansdale and David Young will head up the field in the javelin and shot put, respectively. Lansdale who has a best of 247-1 in the spear throwing has a 218 this spring to head the entries while Young who has done nearly 56 feet has a spring's best of 53-6.

Two Arkansas AM&N jumpers are expected to fight it out for the long jump championship with Robert Brown owning a 24-4 and Jesse Sibert having a 24-0. John Cunningham of Quachita (23-5-1/2), Mike Hunnicutt of Southern State (23-4), Johnston of State College (23-7) and Davis of Memphis State (23-6) are other strong entries.

Hole-in-One Scored On 12th In Memphis Open

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)— Babe Hiskey trailed leader Dave Hill going into the second round of the $100,000 Memphis Open Golf Tournament today, but the new car he won for a hole-in-one soothed the pain.

Hill, from Jackson, Mich., shot a 5-under-par 65 in the opening round Thursday and used a powerful driving game to post an eagle 3, three birdies and 14 pars.

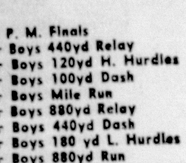

Chasing Hill as play resumed today were Bert Weaver at 66 and four others bunched at 67—Gary Player, Harold Henning, Dave Marr and Hiskey.

Next came Dave Stockton, Dave Ragan, Steve Spray and Randi Petri with 68s. Defending champion Bert Yancey shot a par-70, and former champ Jack Nicklaus soared to a 77.

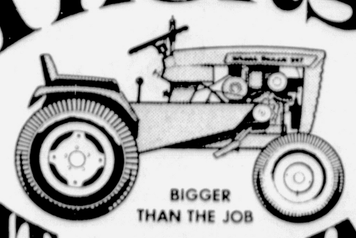

Hiskey, 28, of Burley, Idaho, jumped to an early lead with a 7-iron hole-in-one on the 182-yard 12th. And he missed another hole-in-one by two inches on the 17th.

But the putter was his big stick and perhaps the deadliest club on the course. Hiskey was not accurate with his tee shots and he hit only 12 greens in regulation. But he tied for first on the greens—with eight one-putts and nine two-putts.

A 30-footer on the 500-yard 16th gave him an eagle-3, and he sank 25-foot putts for a birdie and a par.

Student Group Protests New Hiring Practice

KANSAS CITY (AP)— An official of the Missouri Federation of College Republican Clubs said Tuesday that more than 1,000 signatures have been obtained to petitions protesting the state's new practice in hiring of summer employees for the Missouri Highway Department.

John Sharp, executive vice-chairman of the federation and a student at the University of Missouri at Kansas City, said the signers include about 200 students and teachers at UMKC and Rockhurst College in Kansas City.

Republican legislative leaders have criticized Gov. Warren E. Hearnes for the new hiring practices in which highway jobs are being handled through Floyd Warmann, political patronage assistant to the governor.

An investigation into the situation by a Missouri House committee is tentatively set to begin June 5. The governor has said his office is not asking the politics of students seeking summer jobs.

Sharp said John Mueller, a student of the University of Missouri at Columbia and state chairman of the federation, plans to present the petitions to the governor Thursday.

Sharp said the petitions "oppose the actions of Gov. Hearnes in taking the hiring of summer students out of the hand of the Highway Department and making them payoffs for his political friends."

He said, "We ask that the governor put the hiring . . . back into the hands of the Highway Department and that hiring be on the basis of need rather than political connections."

The juniors, seniors and their dates of the East Side and the First Churches of the Nazarene were honored at a party Friday after high school commencement exercises.

The party was in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde L. Launius, 708 Pine.

A Hawaiian theme was used. The walls of one section of the recreation room were covered with straw shades and strings of flowers. A tropical scene painted by Mrs. Lynn Price of Marble Hill also decorated the wall. Lawn furniture and a garden umbrella covered with straw furnished the room. Other decorations were a basket of artificial flowers, drift wood, fish net, potted plants and a palm tree.

The serving bar was centered with a cut glass punch bowl and a matching tray. Orchids were arranged on the tray. Fresh pineapples appointed each side of the bowl. A crystal punch bowl and orchid tapers in silver holders centered another serving table.

Refreshments were served.

As the guests arrived, they were greeted with "Aloha" by Debbie Launius. They were presented leis and orchids.

Card tables covered in white were centered with red candles. Miniature diplomas were place cards and mortarboards were favors.

Jim Trimble and John Swinney playing their electric guitars and Rodger McDaniel, drummer, entertained.

Hawaiian records were played.

Mr. and Mrs. John Southern and Mr. and Mrs. Launius were chaperons.

Guests presented Mr. and Mrs. Launius with a gift.

House Passes Bonus Bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. AP -- The Missouri House of Representatives Tuesday celebrated Memorial Day by passing a "pie in the sky" bonus bill for veterans of World War II, the Korean War and the continuing Vietnam conflict.

No estimates of the cost have been made but it would run upward from $400 million, depending on how long the Vietnam fighting continues.

It would give veterans $15 for each month of service within the continental United States and $25 a month for service overseas with a maximum of $2,000 to any one veteran.

A tenth of the revenue from the state's biggest revenue producer, the sales tax, would be earmarked to pay the cost of the bonus.

Normally, bonus proposals have a maximum of around $500 for any veteran and the current bill started out that way this time. But a group of Democrats grabbed it from its Republican sponsor, Rep. Edna Eads of Bonne Terre. They tacked the higher maximum on it and increased the share of the sales tax to pay it.

Bonus proposals have regularly been defeated in the Missouri Legislature in the past 20 years.

This time the House Appropriations chairman, Rep. E. J. Cantrell, D-Overland, was the only one to speak against the plan.

"Who's fooling whom?" he asked.

Bill G. Porter

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene E. Porter of Sikeston and lives with his wife, Joan, on route three. Porter was discharged from service March 26 and is now an agent for the Mid-America Insurance company.

ONE OF THE WORLD'S WONDERS

About 500 years before Christ, a Babylonian king married a beautiful princess from a foreign country. She yearned for her native land — it's hills, trees and flowers. To gratify her, the king built a mighty structure four hundred feet square and a hundred feet tall on the west bank of the river Euphrates. Here he planted rare flowers and shrubs, trees and unusual plants. Thus the Hanging Gardens of Babylon, one of the Seven Wonders of the World, came into existence.

Potted plants and dish gardens can brighten and beautify your home. We have a wonderful selection that can add a touch of pleasant charm to any room . . . or bring friendly cheer to a shut-in friend. Call GR 1-5777 we are as close as your telephone.

The POWER of FAITH By WOODI ISHMAEL

Victor Hugo, French literary giant in the Nineteenth Century, was not only a man of many thousands of words in his poems, plays, novels and essays, but he was a dedicated man of action based on faith. Strongly influenced by his mother, a devout Catholic, both in his writings and in political action, he dedicated his life to man's liberty. Because of that dedication, he was exiled for 19 years.

In France his name stood as a symbol of the Republic and he said, "When liberty returns, I shall return!"

Later he became intensely absorbed with the soul of man. He jotted down many notes, including the following which is helpful even today.

"You say the soul is nothing but the resultant of the bodily powers. Why, then, is my soul more luminous when my bodily powers begin to fail? Winter is on my head, but eternal spring is in my heart."

Red Chinese Fed Continuous Stream Of Mao Propaganda

EDITOR'S NOTE— This is a report from an observant Japanese woman recently on a tour in China—a country few U.S. reporters have been allowed to see in the past 18 years. She is Chie Nishio, 37, a photographer of social documentaries.

By CHIE NISHIO

PEKING (AP)— Wherever you go, Mao, Mao, Mao.

The Chinese don't seem to get tired of reading about Mao Tse-tung, hearing about him, seeing his face plastered across walls, shops, and buildings all over China.

When we crossed the border from Hong Kong to Shumchun, each member of our party received a copy of Mao's quotations. Then we went to another room of the station to watch a 20-minute song and dance performance by 15 musicians and dancers. The theme: Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

On the 2½-hour train ride to Canton, in the first class, or "soft seat" section we got tea and the conductresses began another performance. But first, an interpreter urged us to read from our little red Mao books.

The songs were of Mao's greatness, or taken from the book of quotations. On the blouses of our 20-year-old conductresses were pinned small red cameos of Mao.

After a while we got used to opening our books; we sort of liked it.

We'd sing songs when the conductresses asked us. We didn't mind because they were fun.

As the train rolled through the countryside, with its red soil, its poor— and sometimes prosperous— farms, its sparse trees and broad vistas, I thought how they built the Great Wall. How many people without machines; so many, many years to build, like the pyramids of Egypt; the suffering, the hard life.

In Canton, another show, this time by the army. They were waiting for us at the station, with a picture of Mao and posters proclaiming: "Down with Liu Shao-chi." Soldiers gripped Mao's little red book in their hands.

Before eating dinner we read from Mao's thoughts. I asked our interpreter about religion. She told me the Chinese have freedom of religion and freedom of being antireligion. Religion is superstition, she said; we have Chairman Mao, so there is no need to believe in it.

Our guides took us in Canton to see a leadership school Mao founded in 1924; it is a mecca for Red Guards.

At a militia training ground, there was live ammunition firing, live mortars exploded. Trainees marched with rapid strides, carrying Mao's quotations. Band music was interspersed with Mao's thoughts.

In Peking, Shanghai, Chengchow, along the Great Wall, in the communes, it was the same: An ever-present Mao watched us.

In a Fatshan enamelware factory, the 500 workers turn out busts of Mao, read Mao's thoughts in the morning, at lunch and in the afternoon.

Fatshan itself is plastered with Mao's pictures and quotations, written in white characters on red boards.

Shanghai, the noisiest of Chinese cities, reverberates to the name of Mao. Loudspeakers blare from 6 a.m. until late at night. I couldn't sleep because of the noise. In the parks, more loudspeakers.

At the ballet in Peking and Shanghai the stories were about revolution. The audience booed the villains— landlords— and cheered the heroes— People's Liberation Army men. At the curtain calls the cast and audience joined in singing a song about Mao.

From Peking we went to the Great Wall of China, by car. A diesel locomotive which passed us had on its front, like a giant apron, a picture of Mao.

We had a picnic lunch of fried chicken, fried sausage, cookies, beer and orange juice then climbed onto the ancient wall. There, inevitably, was a picture of Mao.

Engineers Okay Food Control Improvements

VICKSBURG, Miss. -- The Mississippi River U. S. Corps of Engineers has issued a favorable report and recommendation for flood control and improvements in Pemiscot County and Mississippi County, Ark. at an estimated total cost of $4,638,000.

The improvements and enlargements recommended by the Corps of Engineers are located on Belle Fountain Ditch and tributaries in southern Pemiscot County at an estimated cost of $2,425,000.

The Missouri plan calls for improvement and enlargement of 6.2 miles of Belle Fountain Ditch, located directly south of Kennett just north of the Arkansas state line, from its junction with the Outlet Ditch east to the confluence of Ditch No. 9 and Main Ditch; 7 miles of Ditch No. 9 from its mouth north to lateral No. 2; 7 miles of Main Ditch from its mouth eastward to the confluence of the north-south branch of Main Ditch and New Franklin Ditch; approximately 10 miles of New Franklin Ditch upstream to Main Ditch No. 2; 17 miles of Main Ditch from its junction at New Franklin Ditch north to Ditch No. 2; the entire 8 miles of Ditch No. 2; 6 miles of Ditch No. 6 upstream to Hayti; and 5.2 miles of Ditch No. 1 from its mouth to Caruthersville.

The plan for Drainage District No. 17 in Arkansas provides; cleanout of 0.8 mile of Ditch No. 71; enlargement of 6 miles of Ditch No. 21A and 3.5 miles of Ditch No. 25 from its mouth to the west boundary of Blytheville Air Force Base; a 700-cfs pumping station near the junction of Ditch 71 and Ditch 21B to discharge into Big Lake Floodway; and enlargement of: the entire 16 miles of Ditch No. 27; 2 miles of Ditch No. 30 from its mouth to Ditch No. 32; 1 miles of Ditch No. 33 from its mouth to the Blytheville city limits; 1.5 miles of Ditch No. 36 from its mouth to Ditch No. 37; 0.5 mile of Ditch No. 37 from Ditch No. 36 to the Blytheville city limits; and cleanout of approximately 3.8 miles of Pemiscot Bayou from its confluence with Ditch No. 27 to Ditch No. 36.

The report is being referred for review to the office of the U. S. Chief of Engineers in Washington, D.C. Interested parties are urged to present written views on the report to the Chief of Engineers. Statements submitted, according to the Mississippi River Commission, should not repeat material previously presented at public hearings held by the District Engineer or contained in the reports of the commission and the engineer since this information is already available to the Washington office.

Barley Fields Observed

PORTAGEVILLE -- Officials of the Malting Barley Improvement Association of Milwaukee, and Anheuser Busch, Inc., of St. Louis were in the Portageville area last week to observe the malting barley fields and research work at the Delta Center.

Dr. A. J. Lejeune, Executive Director; Dr. P. E. Pawlisch, Research Agronomist and Mr. W. D. Drummond of the Malting Barley Improvement Association and Dr. Paul Hoskins of Anheuser-Busch said that barley crop looked good to them and predicted favorable yields. The group also complimented the farmers, grain dealers and the Delta Center for their enthusiasm and results accomplished in trying to develope malting barley as a crop in the Missouri Bootheel.

Besides looking at the barley fields near Portageville the group carefully inspected the extensive research being conducted by Dr. Leo Duclos on malting barley.

Dr. Duclos is crossing, testing and selecting for improved varieties of barley that will be adapted to Southeast Missouri. Dr. Duclos is also conducting rotation studies with barley using the major crops being grown in the Bootheel. One of the advantages of growing barley as a winter grain crop is that it matures earlier than wheat and can be followed with soybeans without too much risk of getting a reduction in soybean yield due to late planting. In connection with this Dr. Duclos is conducting studies of early harvesting of barley by cutting and windrowing the barley at 50% moisture and cutting at different moisture levels until normal harvesting stage to see how early can harvest barley without loss of yield and quality. This also permits earlier planting of soybeans and allows harvesting of the barley before the ripened grain is damaged by "weathering". The malting barley people like a bright, plump barley.

Seventeen farmers are cooperating with Anheuser-Busch and the University of Missouri in growing approximately 850 acres of Carstens, a two-row variety for large scale malting tests. Twelve of eleven growers and approximately 500 acres is being grown in the Portageville area.

Dave McCrate of Portageville and Joe Scott, Extension Field Crops Specialist at the Delta Center, have been instrumental in getting farmers to try this new crop. There is an unlimited demand for high quality malting and premium prices will be offered to farmers for the barley.

Red Chinese Fed Continuous Stream Of Mao Propaganda

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is a report from an observant Japanese woman recently on a tour in China—a country few U.S. reporters have been allowed to see in the past 18 years. She is Chie Nishio, 37, a photographer of social documentaries.

By CHIE NISHIO

PEKING (AP)—Wherever you go, Mao, Mao, Mao.

The Chinese don't seem to get tired of reading about Mao Tse-tung, hearing about him, seeing his face plastered across walls, shops, and buildings all over China.

When we crossed the border from Hong Kong to Shumchun, each member of our party received a copy of Mao's quotations. Then we went to another room of the station to watch a 20-minute song and dance performance by 15 musicians and dancers. The theme: Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

On the 2½-hour train ride to Canton, in the first class, or "soft seat" section we got tea and the conductresses began another performance. But first, an interpreter urged us to read from our little red Mao books.

The songs were of Mao's greatness, or taken from the book of quotations. On the blouses of our 20-year-old conductresses were pinned small red cameos of Mao.

After a while we got used to opening our books; we sort of liked it.

We'd sing songs when the conductresses asked us. We didn't mind because they were fun.

As the train rolled through the countryside, with its red soil, its poor—and sometimes prosperous—farms, its sparse trees and broad vistas, I thought how they built the Great Wall. How many people without machines; so many, many years to build, like the pyramids of Egypt; the suffering, the hard life.

In Canton, another show, this time by the army. They were waiting for us at the station, with a picture of Mao and posters proclaiming: "Down with Liu Shao-chi." Soldiers gripped Mao's little red book in their hands.

Before eating dinner we read from Mao's thoughts. I asked our interpreter about religion. She told me the Chinese have freedom of religion and freedom of being antireligion. Religion is superstition, she said; we have Chairman Mao, so there is no need to believe in it.

Our guides took us in Canton to see a leadership school Mao founded in 1924; it is a mecca for Red Guards.

At a militia training ground, there was live ammunition firing, live mortars exploded. Trainees marched with rapid strides, carrying Mao's quotations. Band music was interspersed with Mao's thoughts.

In Peking, Shanghai, Chengchow, along the Great Wall, in the communes, it was the same: An ever-present Mao watched us.

In a Fatshan enamelware factory, the 500 workers turn out busts of Mao, read Mao's thoughts in the morning, at lunch and in the afternoon.

Fatshan itself is plastered with Mao's pictures and quotations, written in white characters on red boards.

Shanghai, the noisiest of Chinese cities, reverberates to the name of Mao. Loudspeakers blare from 6 a.m. until late at night, I couldn't sleep because of the noise. In the parks, more loudspeakers.

At the ballet in Peking and Shanghai the stories were about revolution. The audience booed the villains—landlords—and cheered the heroes—People's Liberation Army men. At the curtain calls the cast and audience joined in singing a song about Mao.

From Peking we went to the Great Wall of China, by car. A diesel locomotive which passed us had on its front, like a giant apron, a picture of Mao.

We had a picnic lunch of fried chicken, fried sausage, cookies, beer and orange juice then climbed onto the ancient wall. There, inevitably, was a picture of Mao.

The improvements and enlargements recommended by the Corps of Engineers are located on Belle Fountain Ditch and tributaries in southern Pemiscot County at an estimated cost of $2,425,000.

The Missouri plan calls for improvement and enlargement of 6.2 miles of Belle Fountain Ditch, located directly south of Kennett just north of the Arkansas state line, from its junction with the Outlet Ditch east to the confluence of Ditch No. 9 and Main Ditch; 7 miles of Ditch No. 9 from its mouth north to lateral No. 2; 7 miles of Main Ditch from its mouth eastward to the confluence of the north-south branch of Main Ditch and New Franklin Ditch; approximately 10 miles of New Franklin Ditch upstream to Main Ditch No. 2; 17 miles of Main Ditch from its junction at New Franklin Ditch north to Ditch No. 2; the entire 8 miles of Ditch No. 2; 6 miles of Ditch No. 6 upstream to Hayti; and 5.2 miles of Ditch No. 1 from its mouth to Caruthersville.

The report is being referred for review to the office of the U. S. Chief of Engineers in Washington, D.C. Interested parties are urged to present written views on the report to the Chief of Engineers. Statements submitted, according to the Mississippi River Commission, should not repeat material previously presented at public hearings held by the District Engineer or contained in the reports of the commission and the engineer since this information is already available to the Washington office.

More Catholics To Receive Communion

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Starting Aug. 15, a greater number of Roman Catholics will be allowed to take communion wine as well as bread in celebration of the Eucharist, the peak of Catholic worship.

This is part of a series of new regulations on the Eucharist drawn up by the Vatican Congregation of Rites to implement changes in liturgy suggested by the Vatican Ecumenical Council and approved by Pope Paul VI.

In past practice only the priest, who consecrates the host, partakes of wine as well as the bread. Catholic belief considers the Eucharist as the blood and flesh of Christ.

Also able to take both bread and wine will be a bride and bridegroom in their wedding Mass, and newly baptized adults along with the godfather, godmother, parents and spouse of the newly baptized and the lay instructors who have prepared the adult for baptism.

Two Department Store Branches Closed

ST. LOUIS (AP)— Two of the four Scruggs - Vandervoort-Barney department stores in the St. Louis area have been closed, the Larchfield Corp. announced Wednesday.

Larchfield acquired the 117-year-old downtown store and its three suburban branches in August, 1963.

J. Fred Caesar, executive president and general manager of the stores, said both the downtown store and the Clayton, Mo., branch would discontinue operations at once. The Crestwood and Northwest Plaza stores would operate normally, he said.

Poor profits was the reason for the closings, despite heavy sums pumped into the operation, Caesar said.

Larchfield spokesmen said the corporation will buy from Harrison Factors Corp. of New York two buildings which it has been leasing for the downtown store. The current lease will not expire until 1971. Caesar said Larchfield plans to convert the two buildings into offices.

The lease on the Clayton store has about 58 years to run and Caesar said Larchfield is exploring several possibilities for sale of the lease but nothing has developed.

Motorist Survey Set In Scenic River Areas

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The State Highway Department announced today it will start June 6 an origin and destination survey of motorists using the highways in the Ozark National Scenic Riverways areas.

Crews headed by James Siegel will interview drivers in Shannon, Carter, Dent, Howell and Texas counties.

Results will be used in planning highway needs in the riverways area along the Current and Jacks Fork rivers.

Two Department Store Branches Closed

ST. LOUIS (AP)— Two of the four Scruggs - Vandervoort-Barney department stores in the St. Louis area have been closed, the Larchfield Corp. announced Wednesday.

Larchfield acquired the 117-year-old downtown store and its three suburban branches in August, 1963.

J. Fred Caesar, executive president and general manager of the stores, said both the downtown store and the Clayton, Mo., branch would discontinue operations at once. The Crestwood and Northwest Plaza stores would operate normally, he said.

Poor profits was the reason for the closings, despite heavy sums pumped into the operation, Caesar said.

Larchfield spokesmen said the corporation will buy from Harrison Factors Corp. of New York two buildings which it has been leasing for the downtown store. The current lease will not expire until 1971. Caesar said Larchfield plans to convert the two buildings into offices.

The lease on the Clayton store has about 58 years to run and Caesar said Larchfield is exploring several possibilities for sale of the lease but nothing has developed.

Motorist Survey Set In Scenic River Areas

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The State Highway Department announced today it will start June 6 an origin and destination survey of motorists using the highways in the Ozark National Scenic Riverways areas.

Crews headed by James Siegel will interview drivers in Shannon, Carter, Dent, Howell and Texas counties.

Results will be used in planning highway needs in the riverways area along the Current and Jacks Fork rivers.

Missouri Pilot Scores Direct Hit

SAIGON (AP) — Cmdr. Ed Bauer, of Columbia, Mo., said he scored a direct hit on a North Vietnamese highway bridge at Son Chau, 35 miles north of Vinh, during a raid Sunday.

Bauer piloted one of a group of U. S. Navy A6 Intruder planes that attacked the bridge.

Looking Back Over The Years

50 years ago
June 2, 1917

V. L. Harris, aged 46, ex-Recorder of Deeds and former Public Administrator of Scott County, died at his home in Benton yesterday.

Small pox seems to be gradually dying out here, no new cases being reported since Sunday. Those reported last week were in homes where the disease had been before. There are indications that the quarantine will be lifted in a short time.

A letter from Harry Blanton, who is at the Ft. Riley training camp says that he has gained five pounds, notwithstanding the hard work. Ernest Arterburn and Frank Van Horne are both well.

The Sanitary Barber Shop on New Madrid street has recently been re-modeled and re-decorated. The owners of the shop, James Mocabee and John Fisher, are both enterprising young men.

Morehouse -- Hailstones moved a path from a mile south of Salcedo to Vanduser running east and west for many miles Tuesday. Crops were generally a complete loss and nearly every building was more or less damaged.

The surface water coming from north of Sikeston through our streets should be a fresh incentive for renewed efforts for some plan to take care of this nuisance. It is the worst possible advertisement any city ever had to have to run through water hub deep. No man or set of men should stand in the way of this relief.

Milton Blanton came in from Atlanta, Ga., Thursday morning, where he has been a student at Georgia Tech for the past three terms.

Miss Exalee Woodward of Bosworth will take the vacancy among the school teachers made by Miss Annette Smith.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: When a man marries a woman who is young enough to be his daughter --- or his granddaughter --- why do people think it is so romantic and glamorous? Yet when a woman marries a man who is younger than she is, the eyebrows shoot up and her sanity is questioned. When I was 18 I married a man 38. That marriage lasted 14 years and ended in divorce. Now I am married to a man 16 years my junior and we get along beautifully. But the outside world will not let us alone. Some fairly intelligent people have asked me some unbelievably crass questions. Will you comment, please? --DECEMBER AND MAY

Dear December: More old gaffers marry young chicks than the other way around, so people have come to accept more readily the May-December combination than the December - May arrangement.

A woman who marries a man 16 years her junior should expect some comment but if she has a good marriage it should not bother her.

Dear Ann Landers: I am glad you printed the letter from the Information Operator who resented being called "an ignorant broad."

I have been employed by the telephone company for a long time and I would like to offer some additional pointers to the public.

(1) Mothers, please teach your children to use the telephone book instead of how to dial 411 or 113.

(2) Learn the name of your cleaner, beauty shop, grocery store and "that little hamburger place on the corner." How do you expect US to know it if you don't?.

Dear A.C.: Here's your letter and I hope all you lazy mothers, potato - chip chewers and pencilless people will pay attention.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 18. The boy I used to be ape over treated me pretty rotten and finally I told him to flake off. He did -- for six weeks. Then he started to call me again. We've had three dates since the bust-up and now I am sure there is nothing left of that old feeling. In fact, I can barely stand him.

The trouble is my mother thinks he is the greatest and she keeps trying to sell me on him. He knows this so he keeps coming to the house under the pretense of visiting HER.

Last night he was here for two hours. I stayed on the phone, and read the newspaper the whole time. I know it was rude but he grates on my nerves.

How can I get my mother to put an end to this phoney friendship which is really a plot to get me re-interested? --- D.J.N.

Dear D.: Your mother has a right to entertain anyone she pleases. Give the guy a pleasant greeting, then go into another room. Since he is not your guest you are under no obligation to entertain him. After awahile he'll give up.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting -- And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 25 cents in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- A joint House - Senate study committee has concluded the "shared time" issue needs further investigation.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE
BY Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE BUSTY BRUISER

When Mike went to work at a factory that manufactured female sex hormones, he had muscles that shimmered every time he flexed his arm. With big broad shoulders, he was a real he-man to look at. But, after working at the factory for a period of time, he suddenly noticed that his deep baritone voice was changing to a high soprano. What's more, he found himself taking on other female characteristics. The real payoff came, however, when his fellow employees began to call him Michele instead of Mike. Furious, he sued his employer for damages.

"I should have been warned that those hormones could make a man effeminate," he complained to a judge. "Instead of looking like a ro-busty male, I'm starting to look like a busty female."

"If what Mike says is true," answered his employer. "It was an accident. Consequently, while he may be able to collect a Workman's Compensation award, he can't sue me for damages."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold Mike's employer liable because Mike turned from a he-man into a she-man?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that since Mike's "injury" arose out of and in the course of his employment, and was a compensatable disease, Mike's claim was properly one for Workmen's Compensation and not for damages against his employer.

Can Sculptor Remodel Love-sick "Dull Girl"?

A steady stream of timid young girls has been wending its way to the studio of Sculptor Alex Monroe — a fact that has Mary Worth, for one, very curious.

In the new story, starting Monday, Mary finds Alex does more than mold the likeness of his young models . . . he molds their lives, as well, in an enterprise called "Pygmalion, Inc."

Remember what legend tells us happened to the original sculptor, Pygmalion? Will history repeat itself with Alex when he starts remodeling Essie Boswell?

How to cut employment problems down to size.

When we look at America's employment challenges—the need to create more jobs and to train people for existing jobs—as one huge national problem, demanding a single, vast federally-imposed solution, the task ahead appears overwhelmingly large and complex.

But if we look at employment problems on a community by community and company by company basis—even on a person by person basis—then we cut the problem down to size, and come up with the great variety of answers needed to produce practical solutions.

That's what an industrialist in Freeland, Pennsylvania did. He was convinced that the town's unemployed coal miners could be trained for factory work. He built a plant in the area, set up a system for screening job applicants, and systematic on-the-job training. Result: former miners are now turning out quality products and earning good wages.

The National Association of Manufacturers' STEP (Solutions To Employment Problems) program has reported on this instance—and dozens of other local solutions to employment challenges—in detailed case studies which are available without charge. If you want to know more about how to cut employment problems down to size, write to STEP, National Association of Manufacturers, 277 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017.

V. L. Harris, aged 46, ex-Recorder of Deeds and former Public Administrator of Scott County, died at his home in Benton yesterday.

Small pox seems to be gradually dying out here, no new cases being reported since Sunday. Those reported last week were in homes where the disease had been before. There are indications that the quarantine will be lifted in a short time.

A letter from Harry Blanton, who is at the Ft. Riley training camp says that he has gained five pounds, notwithstanding the hard work. Ernest Arterburn and Frank Van Horne are both well.

The Sanitary Barber Shop on New Madrid street has recently been re-modeled and re-decorated. The owners of the shop, James Mocabee and John Fisher, are both enterprising young men.

Morehouse -- Hailstones moved a path from a mile south of Salcedo to Vanduser running east and west for many miles Tuesday. Crops were generally a complete loss and nearly every building was more or less damaged.

The surface water coming from north of Sikeston through our streets should be a fresh incentive for renewed efforts for some plan to take care of this nuisance. It is the worst possible advertisement any city ever had to have to run through water hub deep. No man or set of men should stand in the way of his relief.

Milton Blanton came in from Atlanta, Ga., Thursday morning, where he has been a student at Georgia Tech for the past three terms.

Miss Exalee Woodward of Bosworth will take the vacancy among the school teachers made by Miss Annette Smith.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: When a man marries a woman who is young enough to be his daughter --- or his granddaughter --- why do people think it is so romantic and glamorous? Yet when a woman marries a man who is younger than she is, the eyebrows shoot up and her sanity is questioned. When I was 18 I married a man 38. That marriage lasted 14 years and ended in divorce. Now I am married to a man 16 years my junior and we get along beautifully. But the outside world will not let us alone. Some fairly intelligent people have asked me some unbelievably crass questions. Will you comment, please? --DECEMBER AND MAY

Dear December: More old gaffers marry young chicks than the other way around, so people have come to accept more readily the May-December combination than the December - May arrangement.

A woman who marries a man 16 years her junior should expect some comment but if she has a good marriage it should not bother her.

Dear Ann Landers: I am glad you printed the letter from the Information Operator who resented being called "an ignorant broad."

I have been employed by the telephone company for a long time and I would like to offer some additional pointers to the public.

(1) Mothers, please teach your children to use the telephone book instead of how to dial 411 or 113.

(2) Learn the name of your cleaner, beauty shop, grocery store and "that little hamburger place on the corner." How do you expect US to know it if you don't?.

(3) Please don't chew potato chips and nuts and hard candy in our ears.

(4) Please have a pencil handy when you call information for a number. Sometimes people say, "Hold on while I get a pencil." Then they must go to the store to buy one!

Thanks for helping us educate the public. --- AREA CODE 312

A Universal Picture

How to cut employment problems down to size.

When we look at America's employment challenges—the need to create more jobs and to train people for existing jobs—as one huge national problem, demanding a single, vast federally-imposed solution, the task ahead appears overwhelmingly large and complex.

But if we look at employment problems on a community by community and company by company basis—even on a person by person basis—then we cut the problem down to size, and come up with the great variety of answers needed to produce practical solutions.

That's what an industrialist in Freeland, Pennsylvania did. He was convinced that the town's unemployed coal miners could be trained for factory work. He built a plant in the area, set up a system for screening job applicants, and systematic on-the-job training. Result: former miners are now turning out quality products and earning good wages.

The National Association of Manufacturers' STEP (Solutions To Employment Problems) program has reported on this instance—and dozens of other local solutions to employment challenges—in detailed case studies which are available without charge. If you want to know more about how to cut employment problems down to size, write to STEP, National Association of Manufacturers, 277 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Premier Levi Eshkol Thursday night gave up the defense post to Dayan, the 52-year-old, one-eyed war hero and political ally of former Premier David Ben-Gurion.

The appointment was warmly welcomed in Israel, though opinion was divided whether it promised a challenge soon to the Egyptian forces threatening Israel's southern shipping route through the Gulf of Aqaba or the Arab legions massed on Israel's frontiers.

Some Israeli hawks expect their government to take a stronger milltary posture. Doves said Eshkol would have to approve any change in policy, and so far he and Foreign Minister Abba Eban have been following the advice of the United States and others to keep their forces leashed while a diplomatic solution to the crisis is sought.

However, Dayan's appointment was expected in Israel to make a strong impression on the Arabs, who remember his successful leadership in the 1956 Sinai war.

Ben-Gurion hailed Dayan's reentry into the military field as "a very important step."

"It will give the country a wise and courageous leadership," he said.

The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram, Nasser's usual mouthpiece, claimed that the armed forces now control Israel and predicted that Premier Levhi Eshkol's government would be overthrown soon unless it takes military action against the Egyptian blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba.

Al Ahram warned that Egypt may shut off the Suez Canal to any nation trying to break the blockade it has imposed on the gulf between the Red Sea and Israel's southern port, Elath.

In a move to forestall any attempt by U.S. and British warships to break the blockade, Al Ahram said Cairo would regard such attempts as aggression and exercise its right to bar the aggressor's ships from the Suez Canal under the 1888 Treaty of Constantinople.

The paper said Nasser's government was drawing up a plan to meet "attempts by the United States and Britain to pressure and provoke Egypt."

Al Ahram also charged that passage of the U.S. aircraft carrier Intrepid through the Suez Canal Thursday "represented an American show of force even though the captain told canal authorities the ship was bound for the Indian Ocean."

The Intrepid, with 78 jet fighters aboard, steamed southeast through the Red Sea Thursday night. The U.S. Defense Department said she was bound for Vietnam.

U.S. leaders in Washington were reported still hopeful a way could be found out of the Middle East crisis without a test of force against Nasser's blockade of Israeli shipping.

A sweeping review of the situation and plans for future developments were high on the agenda for a White House conference today between President Johnson and British Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

Kuwait's oil minister, Abdul Rahman Alatiqi, said the oil conference would also warn oil companies that shipment of petroleum to countries supporting Israel would mean immediate abrogation of their concessions. British and American interests predominate in Kuwait, one of the Middle East's biggest oil producers.

King Hassan II of Morocco sent a message to all Arab governments proposing a summit meeting on the crisis, Moroccan officials disclosed.

In Amman, Jordan, Al Ahram reported, King Hussein summoned the U.S. ambassador to relay a warning to President Johnson that any American support for Israeli aggression would have far-reaching consequences on Arab-American relations."

Hussein was also reported to have protested U.S diversion of the American freighter Green Island to Ethiopia when it was en route to Jordan with a cargo of arms.

Arab unity still was not complete, however.

Al Ahram also reported that Saudi Arabia stopped supplying ammunition to Jordan after Hussein signed a five-year defense pact with Egypt Tuesday. Delivery of about 100 tons of ammunition which already had arrived at the Saudi-Jordan border was halted, the paper said.

Syria continued to criticize Jordan and ignore the new Egyptian-Jordanian treaty despite efforts by Nasser to get the Damascus government to sign a similar pact with Hussein. Damascus Radio again denounced the king as "the traitor monarch" and Damascus papers claimed that trouble had broke out inside Jordan.

The crisis brought pledges of support for both sides from various parts of the world.

Forty young Jewish men and women, some wearing miniskirts and beatle haircuts, arrived in Tel Aviv as volunteers. They came from Vancouver, New York and London.

In Rawalpindi, Pakistan, two student and social organizations announced that 500 volunteers are ready to leave for Egypt.

From Sweden came reports of volunteers lining up to back Israel.

In the Sudanese capital, Khartoum, Premier Ahmed Mahgoub said his country would send troops and other aid to Arab forces in their "imminent war."

The Iraqi government said squadrons of Iraqi planes had left to take up "front line positions" and that Iraqi troops had left for unspecified fronts.

Officials in Tripoli announced that Libyan army units had been moved to the country's eastern frontier with Egypt to await orders from King Idris to join the other Arab armies.

Premier Levi Eshkol Thursday night gave up the defense post to Dayan, the 52-year-old, one-eyed war hero and political ally of former Premier David Ben-Gurion.

The appointment was warmly welcomed in Israel, though opinion was divided whether it promised a challenge soon to the Egyptian forces threatening Israel's southern shipping route through the Gulf of Aqaba or the Arab legions massed on Israel's frontiers.

Some Israeli hawks expect their government to take a stronger milltary posture. However, Dayan's appointment was expected in Israel to make a strong impression on the Arabs, who remember his successful leadership in the 1956 Sinai war.

Ben-Gurion hailed Dayan's reentry into the military field as "a very important step."

"It will give the country a wise and courageous leadership," he said.

The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram, Nasser's usual mouthpiece, claimed that the armed forces now control Israel and predicted that Premier Levhi Eshkol's government would be overthrown soon unless it takes military action against the Egyptian blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba.

Al Ahram warned that Egypt may shut off the Suez Canal to any nation trying to break the blockade it has imposed on the gulf between the Red Sea and Israel's southern port, Elath.

In a move to forestall any attempt by U.S. and British warships to break the blockade, Al Ahram said Cairo would regard such attempts as aggression and exercise its right to bar the aggressor's ships from the Suez Canal under the 1888 Treaty of Constantinople.

The paper said Nasser's government was drawing up a plan to meet "attempts by the United States and Britain to pressure and provoke Egypt."

Al Ahram also charged that passage of the U.S. aircraft carrier Intrepid through the Suez Canal Thursday "represented an American show of force even though the captain told canal authorities the ship was bound for the Indian Ocean."

The Intrepid, with 78 jet fighters aboard, steamed southeast through the Red Sea Thursday night. The U.S. Defense Department said she was bound for Vietnam.

U.S. leaders in Washington were reported still hopeful a way could be found out of the Middle East crisis without a test of force against Nasser's blockade of Israeli shipping.

A sweeping review of the situation and plans for future developments were high on the agenda for a White House conference today between President Johnson and British Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

Kuwait's oil minister, Abdul Rahman Alatiqi, said the oil conference would also warn oil companies that shipment of petroleum to countries supporting Israel would mean immediate abrogation of their concessions. British and American interests predominate in Kuwait, one of the Middle East's biggest oil producers.

King Hassan II of Morocco sent a message to all Arab governments proposing a summit meeting on the crisis, Moroccan officials disclosed.

In Amman, Jordan, Al Ahram reported, King Hussein summoned the U.S. ambassador to relay a warning to President Johnson that any American support for Israeli aggression would have far-reaching consequences on Arab-American relations."

Hussein was also reported to have protested U.S diversion of the American freighter Green Island to Ethiopia when it was en route to Jordan with a cargo of arms.

Arab unity still was not complete, however.

Al Ahram also reported that Saudi Arabia stopped supplying ammunition to Jordan after Hussein signed a five-year defense pact with Egypt Tuesday. Delivery of about 100 tons of ammunition which already had arrived at the Saudi-Jordan border was halted, the paper said.

Syria continued to criticize Jordan and ignore the new Egyptian-Jordanian treaty despite efforts by Nasser to get the Damascus government to sign a similar pact with Hussein. Damascus Radio again denounced the king as "the traitor monarch" and Damascus papers claimed that trouble had broke out inside Jordan.

The crisis brought pledges of support for both sides from various parts of the world.

Forty young Jewish men and women, some wearing miniskirts and beatle haircuts, arrived in Tel Aviv as volunteers. They came from Vancouver, New York and London.

In Rawalpindi, Pakistan, two student and social organizations announced that 500 volunteers are ready to leave for Egypt.
